ARMY IN DOUBT

Top Leaders Move Out Of Algiers

ALGIERS (UPI) — President Charles de Gaulle's highest representatives pulled out of Algiers tonight, leaving the city to insurgent French settlers and raising fears for the loyalty of the army commanders in Algeria.

(In Paris, an official source later said the move was made so the government representatives could "act without pressure.")

Delegate-general Paul Delouvrier and Gen. Maurice Challe, supreme military commander in Algeria, announced their withdrawal from the city to a hinterland command post in pre-recorded broadcasts over Algiers Radio.

The two men already had departed to the undisclosed headquarters when the broadcasts were made.

The French News Agency in Paris said more than an hour after the Delouvrier statement that "It was on the government's orders that M. Delouvrier and Gen. Challe left Algiers."

This resulted in speculation that the government was assuming responsibility for the move after the fact, in order to convince people that it was entirely in control of the situation.

Delouvrier said in his address that de Gaulle told him "France will not yield. I will not yield."

He also said de Gaulle would be issuing orders to the army "shortly."

On the face of it, it looked as if the move to the hinterland command post was a tactical move by de Gaulle, in order to plan possible military action against the Algiers insurgents who oppose his self-determination policy for Algeria.

But Delouvrier said to the army in Algiers:

"I say to the army: This is a torment for you, but it is also an order. Close your ranks behind General Challe. Close them behind Gen. de Gaulle. The Moslems are behind him."

Then, addressing himself to the insurgents, he said:

"I am taking the risk of unleashing a civil war in order to avoid secession (of Algeria from France), and de Gaulle's departure. I have taken the risk because I have confidence in you, because I know that the barricades are going to fall."

"Go on, tear them down with shouts of vive de Gaulle. Follow me, I beg you."

The local commanders and turned the decision for peace or civil war over to them.

The main groups of colonists are holding out behind barricades here in Algiers, and have recruited support from other settlers throughout Algeria.

A war veterans' parade seeking to establish a common front with the Moslem population from the Algerian solution the French president has proposed.

Delouvrier called on the Moslems of Algiers to demonstrate for de Gaulle and for the Algerian solution the French president has proposed.

Earlier today, the Moslems had made a farce of insurgent attempts to get them to demonstrate against de Gaulle and his policy.

"I am giving the order to all civil and military authorities to carry out this plan of salvation with all the means at their disposal and with all their soul," Delouvrier said.

Then he called the roll of

Lieut.-Governor Frank Ross
... in official state uniform

ROSS IN FAREWELL CEREMONY

Sickness, Rain Dull 'Opening'

Outside bleak weather dampened the ceremonies at the opening of the B.C. Legislature's session this afternoon.

Inside, the absence of Premier Bennett, in hospital, subdued the proceedings.

But all the customary procedures marking the historic rights of democracy were carried out, along with the pomp of artillery salutes, a sharp honor guard of the famed Princess Pats and the music of a naval band.

Lieut.-Governor Frank Ross, opening his fifth and last session before retiring from office, arrived in his state uniform from government house at 2:45 p.m. and the roll of the artillery across the Causeway was the signal for the show to begin.

CHAMBER CROWDED

The chamber inside, as customary, was crammed with officials of all ranks, and visitors from many parts of the province, with their ladies, to witness the ceremonies. Only 49 of the 52 elected members were in their seats, however, as both Archie Gibbs, Oak Bay Liberal, and Tom Bate, Point Grey Social Credit, are on the sick list with influenza.

After the formalities the dignitaries and guests were prepared to attend the government reception in the Empress Hotel, and some of them later the first state ball in the new government house.

Eight shipyards and a nuclear research centre are affected.

Three are in New York; the others at Sparrows Point, Md., Baltimore and Boston.

Few Surprises As Government Outlines Plans

By PETE LOUDON
Times Legislative Reporter

Substantial boost in payments to welfare cases and pensioners and additional aid to school districts were two of the main points in the speech from the throne to the B.C. legislature today.

There were no major surprises or policy changes indicated in the government forecast — one of the longest on record — which was delivered by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross. A large part of the address reviewed what the government has done in the past year.

But its tone strengthened speculation that an election is near.

Many of the benefits proposed will not be fully detailed until the presentation of Premier Bennett's budget on or about Feb. 12.

This holds true for the two prime items — welfare and school grant increases.

"As further evidence of my government's concern for the welfare of the needy, of old age pensioners, of the blind, disabled and handicapped, and of those receiving social allowance, you will be asked to approve substantial increases in the present supplementary allowance and basic social allowance," the speech said.

It also said, "Your approval will be sought of increased grants to school districts, as well as to the University of British Columbia and to Victoria College."

Help for School Financing

The speech did not clarify whether this would indicate a change in the formula to increase the provincial share of school costs, or whether it indicated more would be spent on schools by the province — which might ordinarily be expected through the demands of increased enrolments.

The throne speech was more specific in promising aid to school districts where construction programs have been slowed because of difficulty in marketing bond issues.

The government has itself purchased $9,000,000 of the last $12,000,000 in bonds issued by B.C. school districts, and "negotiations are now proceeding toward the direct purchase by the government of further school board securities in the amount of about $8,000,000."

Further in the field of education benefits, the throne speech said an increase will be proposed in funds available for matriculation and university honor student scholarships, bursaries and loans to students requiring assistance with tuition.

Under legislation brought down last year, the province pays 50 per cent of the tuition of top students, and 33 1/2 per cent for the first 1,000 with second class honors. A $2,000,000 student loan fund was set up.

Additional "incentive and assistance" is proposed for superior teachers to enable them to take postgraduate courses "while special recognition will be accorded to other outstanding teachers for meritorious service."

The throne speech contained no hints of tax increases or of legislation to affect labor-management negotiations, or other contentious issues, lending strength to the earlier speculation this will be a pre-election session.

Civil servants were praised and told the government will extend further benefits to them. Voluntary training courses will be continued and a fourth executive development training course will be started. There was no direct reference to salary increases.

At the same time, the speech gave no indication the government will make public the Carrothers report which was filed a year ago after an investigation into the question of extending bargaining rights to the B.C. Government Employees' Association.

On the other hand, mention was made of the reports of three commissions of enquiry to be tabled this session — the Shrum report on power matters, Judge A. E. Lord's investigation of Doukhobor land problems, and the report of Judge J.C. Morrow's hearings of the Empire Mills tree farm application. All were made public earlier.

Nursing Survey, Chronic Care

The government will make a province-wide survey of nursing home needs and will implement a program to assist construction of publicly-operated, non-profit institutions.

Further assistance will be offered in the construction of elderly persons' housing developments.

As anticipated, the speech noted "that during the current year my government proposes to undertake an active chronic care program as an extension of the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service."

Outlined earlier, the plan would extend BCHIS coverage to persons requiring extended rehabilitation and convalescence, but likely would not cover the elderly infirm who would not improve under extended treatment.

There will be a broadening of the government's Salk anti-polio vaccine program "to offer the opportunity for immunization to every person in the province." There will be improved services for the handicapped. There will be legislation to "encourage, stimulate and promote recreation, sports and physical fitness programs," indicating a revival of the former "Pro-

Throne Speech Highlights

Major points in the throne speech at the opening of the B.C. Legislature today were:

- More money for old age and blind pensioners.
- More money for social assistance cases and other handicapped people drawing government allowances.
- Increased grants for school districts.
- Government to aid school building by buying school district bonds itself.
- Long-proposed program for care of chronics under hospital insurance to go ahead this year.
- Salk shots against polio to be offered to everyone in the province.
- House committee to study trading stamps and similar promotion devices.
- Government employees to get "further benefits" (wage increases not specified).
- Some assistance coming for certain retired civil servants.
- British Columbia to have an official flag.
- B.C. Power Commission to issue "parity bonds" like the PGE Railway.
- New program to encourage recreation and physical fitness.
- Public works to go ahead at increased pace.
- No hints of any increases in taxes or any reductions.
- Province-wide superannuation plan for hospital workers.
- Expansions proposed in government services covering such things as probation, scholarships for senior matric and university students, public library services, teacher training, alcoholism and narcotics addiction control, housing for aged, and nursing home facilities.

Relax Money Curbs---Labor

OTTAWA (CP) — Relaxation of "tight money" to aid Canada's economy and boost employment was urged on the government today by the Canadian Labor Congress.

The 1,100,000 CLC in its annual legislative submission also urged a freer trade policy and expansion of Canada's social security program.

The 13,000-word submission was presented to Prime Minister Diefenbaker and ministers by a delegation led by CLC President Claude Jodoin.

Dealing with the general economic situation, the congress said it is recognized as being better than a year ago but declared that there seems little prospect that 1960 unemployment will be appreciably less than last year.

TIME TO EASE OFF

Noting that the government had run a large deficit partly to lift the country out of the recession, the congress said that it is not suggesting a succession of these but added:

"We do suggest the time has come to relax the present tight money policy."

"We are not afraid that an increase in the money supply will lead to inflation, as long as we have, as we unquestionably have now, considerable unused resources of plant equipment and manpower."

Discussing international trade, the brief renewed a proposal for establishment of a Canadian export import bank to help Canadian exports compete with those of the United States.

URGENT FREE TRADE

Every consideration of self-interest should impel Canada to pursue a policy of freer multilateral trade. And increased trade with underdeveloped countries could lessen the danger of a swing to communism.

BUT THE DOCTOR WILL TRY AGAIN

Woodpecker Spurs 'Mate'

LONDON (AP) — Dr. Ludwig Koch, 67, today made his 17th annual attempt to capture the mating call of the lesser spotted woodpecker.

The good doctor is 68 now, but he refuses to give up hope.

Last year he almost made it. He crouched in a copse for 72 hours, recorder poised, while a lesser spotted woodpecker hammered tantalizingly on the trees.

Unfortunately, the bird never did get in the mood for love. Or if he did, he kept it to himself.

"Recording this call," said Koch, who is an international authority on bird talk, "is terribly difficult because the bird utters his notes so very rarely."

The call, which Koch whistled for an interviewer, is a regular series of identically pitched 'cheeps. Goes like this:

"Cheep. Pause. Cheep. Pause. Cheep. Pause," and so on, sounding a little like a stanza of beatnik poetry.

People and Things

(Times News Service)

LONDON (UPI) — For some people there are ordeals by fire. For others there are ordeals by torture. For George Marcel Bycroft it was ordeal by love.

For two years Gloria Smith, 35, relentlessly pursued him. For two years the 38-year-old hotel keeper fought, struggled and wept in his efforts to be free.

He got out court injunctions seeking to restrain her from lavishing her attention on him. She replied by clipping love poems out of newspapers and mailing them to him.

When he returned to the hotel there she was, sleeping in his bed. He had her evicted. She came back.

For the fourth time Bycroft resorted to court action. The court listened to his lamentations and sentenced Gloria to four months in jail.

But Bycroft's troubles are not over. The sentence was not absolution—Gloria was not.

GENOA, Italy — A young couple may have to put off their wedding to serve a jail term because they kissed in public.

A Genoa court Wednesday sentenced Vito Maria, 23, and Agnese Marisi, 20, to two months in jail for kissing under a tree in a street on a September night.

They were spotted by a policeman who charged them with "acts contrary to public decency." The court convicted them despite Maria's pleas that "we were doing no harm and we are getting married in March anyway."

Timber Cut Limit

The Greater Victoria Water Board Wednesday changed its method of measuring the quantity of timber to be logged in the Sooke Lake watershed from acreage to board feet.

In the past, under its sustained yield program, a limit of 150 acres annually was put on the logging operations, which was equal to about 10,000,000 board feet in the heavy stands of timber.

But now that cutting is reaching into the leaner hillside stands, 150 acres won't produce the same amount of timber. With the forester's advice, the board decided to set the "cut" at an average 10,000,000 board feet over a five-year basis.

holding an "attitude of contempt for international pledges."

The charges came in a formal statement issued tonight by the foreign ministry in response to a Soviet note, Wednesday warning Japan that Russia would not return to Japan the northern islands of Habomai and Shikotan unless Japan abrogates the new U.S.-Japan security treaty.

The foreign ministry statement, following a decision by the government to reject the Russian note as an "intimidation" on the part of the Soviets, accused the Russians of acting in "complete contravention to international faith."

The Russians agreed two years ago to return the islands, north of Hokkaido in the Kuriles, as soon as a peace treaty is signed with Japan.

"To break former pledges on the ground that Japan's policies do not conform to Soviet wishes constitutes a grave question and reveals the Soviet attitude of contempt for international pledges," the statement said.

"It goes without saying that any country is free to criticize the foreign policies of another... but any attempt to make another country alter its policies through pressure must be called unjustified intervention."

TOURED WITH HOODLUM
—CHICAGO COP FIRED

CHICAGO (AP) — A Chicago police lieutenant who toured Europe last fall with crime syndicate hoodlum Tony Accardo was fired Wednesday, further embarrassing a police department already beleaguered by the biggest scandal in its history.

The civil service commission dismissed Anthony Degrazio, 59, a policeman since 1922, on a charge that he violated a department rule forbidding officers from associating with known criminals.

IN PARLIAMENT

MP's Work Now 'Full-Time Job'

(From Times News Service)

OTTAWA — To general Commons applause, Art Smith (PC-Calgary South) said Wednesday that MPs' $10,000-a-year salaries will have to be increased if parliamentary sessions get longer. They now last some seven months.

He said in the throne speech debate that unless the sessions are shortened an MP will have a full 12-months job in Ottawa. In that case he would need more income to maintain two homes — in his constituency and in the capital.

It is "ridiculous," he said, to think that an MP can maintain two homes on his parliamentary salary without some supplementary income.

Mr. Smith also made several suggestions for expediting Commons business.

They included: Extension of the House's working hours; a reduction in length of the 10-day throne speech debate; a minimum of repetition; smaller committees; discussion groups conducted by the Commons clerk aimed at better acquaintance with House rules.

Progressive Conservatives beat down a CCF non-confidence motion in the government by a vote of 184 to 53. Liberals supported the eight CCF MPs in the vote. The motion charged that the government failed to initiate fundamental economic and social planning necessary to remove existing uncertainty and confusion.

"They included: Extension of the House's working hours; a reduction in length of the 10-day throne speech debate; a minimum of repetition; smaller committees; discussion groups conducted by the Commons clerk aimed at better acquaintance with House rules.

But at the same time it was continuing with plans to acquire the Bomarc anti-bomber missile.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker had misled the Commons last year in suggesting that the Bomarc was a replacement for the Arrow. The missile would only complement an interceptor.

Mr. Hellyer said Parliament is entitled to a forthright government statement on acquisition of nuclear arms. Money was being spent to prepare sites for the nuclear-tipped Bomarc before any agreement with the United States on procurement of nuclear warheads.

If the manned bomber were as obsolete as claimed by Mr. Diefenbaker the Bomarc probably would be eventually cancelled after useless costs.

Churchill Ducks Query on Free Trade

Trade Minister Churchill declined a direct reply to a question concerning Britain's offer of an Anglo-Canadian free trade area.

Opposition leader Pearson asked in the Commons whether Mr. Churchill and Rt. Hon. Reginald Maudling, president of the United Kingdom board of trade, discussed the free trade offer during their talks here Tuesday.

Mr. Churchill said they had discussed "a great number of matters."

Mr. Maudling, a U.K. cabinet minister, said at a press conference Tuesday that Britain has not withdrawn its offer.

Senate Opposition leader W. Ross Macdonald suggested that the upper house should be represented on the parliamentary committee to investigate Canada's defence program.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said he is prepared to discuss with Opposition Leader Pearson establishment of a Commons scrutiny committee.

He explained in a Commons reply to Mr. Pearson that such a committee would comb legis-

FOR SUBSIDIES

New Plea By Farmers To Ottawa

TORONTO (CP) — Prairie grain growers won unanimous support Wednesday from a packed Canadian Federation of Agriculture convention for a renewed bid for deficiency payments on wheat, oats and barley sold through the Canadian wheat board.

They said they have a date in Ottawa Saturday morning with Prime Minister Diefenbaker and his cabinet for their third meeting in a year over this issue. The first farmer delegation brought up the matter last spring when 1,020 grain growers marched on Ottawa.

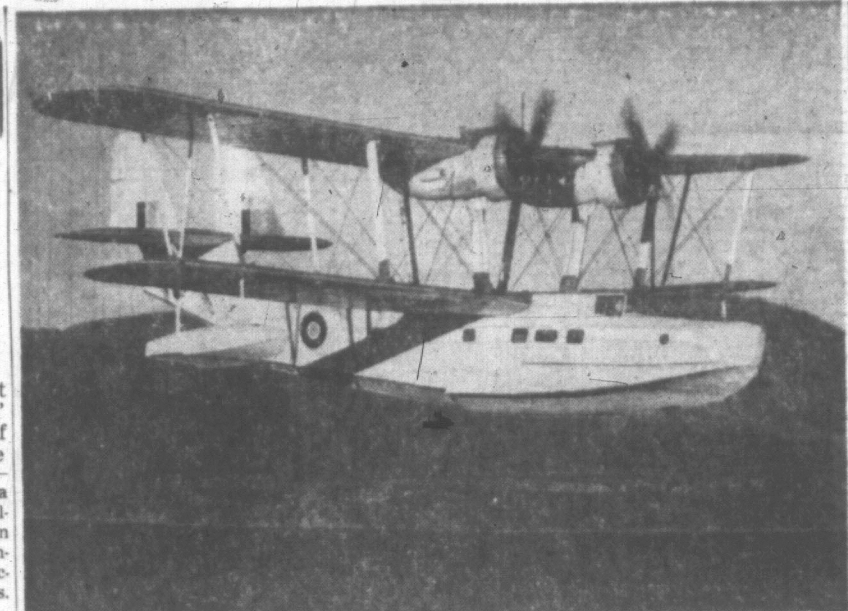

What the CFA approved without a dissenting vote was "support for the principle of deficiency payments" on those three Prairie grains and a four-point program the growers claim will "materially reduce the cost to the federal treasury of a deficiency program."

HERE SHE IS — the Stranraer — taken at Patricia Bay during World War Two. The old 'Gallop' Goose' was used on coastal patrol work in the first years of the war, later being replaced by the Canso or PBY, Catalina flying boat. Plane is thought to be last of its kind.

REBUILT FOR NORTHERN B.C.

'The Goose' Gallops Again

VANCOUVER (CP) — An old Stranraer flying boat, thought to be the last of its kind left in the world, is being prepared for flying service again.

The ancient aircraft, first built for the RAF in the 1930s, is being rebuilt by Vancouver air engineer Wally Slye.

The twin-engined biplane last flew here in 1952 as the "Alaska Queen" for the now-defunct Queen Charlotte Airlines.

The plane, expected to be ready in April, will be used for carrying freight out of Prince Rupert, B.C., or Yellowknife, Y.T.

The last flying Stranraer crashed on take-off from remote Sovereign Lake in the British Columbia Cariboo in 1957, killing its crew of four.

'Strongest Power on Earth' Ike Boasts to Republicans

WASHINGTON (AP)—Exuberant Republicans heard President Eisenhower's assurance Wednesday night that his administration is making the United States the "strongest power on earth" in the military and economic fields.

From Vice-President Nixon came a clear message that while he would be happy to inherit Eisenhower's peace and prosperity laurels, he will not be content merely to stand on them as the new Republican presidential nominee.

In Washington Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller, of New York, cautioned party colleagues that they can't coast on Eisenhower's personal triumphs because the voters will want to know in November "what happens next?"

KICK OFF CAMPAIGN

It was a rousing night for the party as it formally kicked off the 1960 election campaign.

More than 100,000 persons, paying from $25 to $100 a plate, gathered in 83 cities for a closed-circuit television "dinner with Ike."

Like Eisenhower and Nixon, cabinet members and others high in Republican circles deserted Washington to address the dinners individually.

There was no public telecast, but those attending the dinners cheered vigorously a president for who—as Rockefeller put it — rescued the party from "20 years of wandering in the wilderness."

CHEER NIXON

There were thunderous cheers for Nixon, who spoke to 7,000 persons in Chicago's International Amphitheatre — where the Republicans are expected to give him their presidential nomination next July.

'MISSILE FIGURES' JUGGLED

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Stuart Symington Wednesday accused the Eisenhower administration of juggling intelligence data "so the budget books may be balanced."

The facts are that a very substantial missile gap does exist and the administration apparently is going to permit this gap to increase," he said.

Symington, a former air force secretary and longtime opponent of administration military policy, contended the U.S. deficit in intercontinental missiles has widened to more than the three-to-one edge he said defence officials conceded to Russia last year.

Delightfully New and Different!

QUICK ENERGY FAMILY DESSERTS

featuring ROGERS GOLDEN SYRUP

1 ORANGE BABA

Make a sponge, chiffon or angel cake from a mix. When cool — or next day — spoon over the cake this syrup: To one cup of Rogers Golden Syrup add enough fresh or frozen orange juice to make a thin pouring syrup. When the cake has absorbed all the syrup, glaze with heated apricot jam. Use a pastry brush to apply jam. Decorate in a flower design with glace fruit and almonds.

2 FRENCH PANCAKES

You'll need one egg for every two people. Beat lightly and stir in enough flour to make a stiff paste. Add a pinch of salt and a good teaspoon of Rogers Golden Syrup for every egg used. Add milk to make a thin batter (like coffee cream). Pour less than enough to cover the bottom, into a hot greased frying pan. Tip until batter covers bottom. Turn almost immediately.

3 BUTTERSCOTCH SUNDAE SAUCE

1/4 cup Rogers Golden Syrup
1/4 cup butter
Pinch of salt
1 1/2 cups light brown sugar
1 cup cream or evaporated milk

Bring all ingredients to a boil and cook for two minutes. Can be stored in refrigerator several days.

Quick energy food that's good so many ways

Mr. Dillon's Triangle

SO FAR THE ESTABLISHMENT of the Inner Six and Outer Seven in Europe has failed to advance the vision of a North Atlantic trading community presented by such men as Mr. Lester B. Pearson as the economic base required to strengthen the western alliance.

Indeed, the two groupings of nations for trade purposes pose a continual threat to North America. That threat will not be removed unless or until the United States and Canada are brought within the family of traders on a basis which precludes discrimination against the nations of this continent.

Thoroughly alive to the risks, Mr. Douglas Dillon, United States undersecretary, has advanced a proposal which might provide common ground for the North Atlantic community.

He suggests acceptance of the Common Market and the British-sponsored European Free Trade Association as facts and the formation of a new consultative organization representing them as well as European nations outside the two groups and, in addition, the United States and Canada.

He advances the idea that three groups would eventually emerge: The Common Market of France, Belgium, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, West Germany and Italy; the European Free Trade Association of Great Britain, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Switzerland, Austria and Portugal; and thirdly, the United States and Canada.

These groupings would not try to achieve complete free trade throughout Europe and the Atlantic community. Their aim would be to approach free trade inside each group and to lower and equalize barriers between the groups.

Such an arrangement would create special problems for Canada, which already directs a disproportionate share of its trade to and from the United States. As described by Mr. Dillon, the system would ally Canada even more closely with the United States economy, conceivably to the detriment of our trade with other countries. The second stage, with progressively lower trade barriers separating the three blocs, would tend to right this situation, but it would seem to be a hope for the far future.

The Dillon plan is not the ideal of one all-embracing trading club, with branches in Europe and on this side of the ocean, such as was envisioned by Mr. Pearson. It is, rather, three clubs with working arrangements among them to extend special concessions to the members of each.

Mr. Dillon apparently is alive to the fact that imaginative action is needed to furnish some measure of unity in the contest against the trading unity Communism can enforce on its members.

The road toward free trade among the Western nations will not, under any circumstances, be a super-highway. The question seems to be whether or not trans-Atlantic trade progress can be expected, particularly on this side of the Atlantic, where protectionists appear to carry unusual weights with present governments.

The fact remains, however, that the West is in an economic race with the Communist East. And if the West is to make an adequate challenge it had better give its attention to the removal of hurdles which can be eliminated by co-operation among members of its own team.

The Captive School Audience

THE PLAN TO PROVIDE teaching through television to several classes at S. J. Willis Junior High School raises interesting possibilities of progress through the new medium. Lectures by specialists in certain subjects will be available to as many as four classes at once over a closed circuit.

It remains to be seen, however, whether a demonstration in physics, for instance, will be made clearer to a class by means of a 21-inch screen than if presented life-size and in person. The plan suggests that better teaching than the regular teachers can provide will be available, and this may cause some soul-searching among the staffs involved.

There are, as well, practical pitfalls which will have to be avoided. A Winnipeg experiment, apparently with broadcast rather than closed-circuit TV, suggests that a good deal of time could be wasted unless definite steps were taken to avoid such waste.

A report on the Winnipeg experience, admittedly referring to only one school, gives the following timetable:

"At 1.30 p.m., a class of students assembled for their lessons. Fifteen minutes were spent listening to the teacher read a story. The following 15 minutes were wasted while the children re-arranged their desks for a television program which was to be seen at 2 p.m. by another grade.

"At this point, the children switched rooms with the other class. They wasted the next 15 minutes, then returned to see their 15-minute portion of the TV program. At 2.30 the pupils went outdoors for recess. At 2.45 they returned and spent 15 minutes putting their desks back in the customary places, and getting ready for a 3 p.m. radio broadcast.

"This broadcast, on art, lasted for 30 minutes, and was followed by 30 minutes of individual drawing. The time now was 4 p.m., and the class was dismissed for the day.

"Total time in school, 2½ hours. Total time spent in lessons, one hour and 15 minutes—of which 15 minutes was spent watching a television program that most of the pupils judged to be 'uninteresting'."

That, of course, need not be typical, nor need it happen at all. But the local entry into this field should be watched with interest in view of its added costs, its possibilities for better teaching, and its corresponding hazards.

The Diplomatic Traveller

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S completed and planned visits to foreign countries have now reached the point where the diplomatic advantages of stopping at certain capitals may be balanced in part by the disappointments caused by not stopping at certain others. So many hosts are now being included in the presidential itineraries that those who, from sheer necessity, are left out, may seek a reason in discrimination or prejudice.

At any rate that is the fear of some Washington observers, and there may be efforts to have Mr. Eisenhower visit a few of the southeast Asian capitals later this year. By that time he will have been to a number of European countries, to India, to Latin America, to a Paris summit conference and to Moscow.

On his way home from Russia he now plans to stop off at Tokyo and it is this visit that raises the problem of meeting southeast Asian requirements too. Hurt feelings, local prestige and other elements could easily become involved.

Space Cadet on the Farm

FASHION FOR FARMERS MAY soon decree a fiberglass helmet that makes the man of the land look like a man from Mars.

The headgear has already been demonstrated. It is an air-conditioning device principally for tractor drivers working in hot, dusty fields. Each helmet is equipped with a six-foot flexible vinyl hose and can be wired into any 12-volt or converted 6-volt ignition system to provide filtering and temperature controlling systems.

This, it seems, will furnish a degree of comfort unknown now to tractor drivers working arid areas and sneezing from the dust and chaff of their labors.

It could have a more important psychological virtue. Ever since the First World War folk have been singing the interrogative line "How ya gonna keep 'em down on the farm?" Maybe you do it by providing the new helmet and an invitation to Junior to join the space cadets and head for the fields.

LOOSE ENDS

Why Ottawa Worries About Victoria

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

OTTAWA: The public quarrel between the British Columbia Government and the Peace River power promoters caused no surprise or pain in Ottawa.

But the Federal Government, confident of a Columbia River power deal with the United States, is still worried about Victoria's next move. For the provincial authorities, though they may not be able to develop the Peace, can block the Columbia in its final stages because they alone can issue the necessary water licences.

Hutchison

HENCE the question disturbing the Federal Government is this: "Will the provincial authorities quietly delay the Columbia scheme for several years until their favored Peace scheme can get under way?"

Ottawa has never believed that both Columbia and Peace can be harnessed simultaneously since the two schemes would produce more power than British Columbia can use for a good many years to come.

Thus when Mr. W. C. Mainwaring, of the Peace River Power Development Company, admitted that, without exports to the United States, his plans would be shattered by the early development of the Columbia, Ottawa regarded this statement as an admission of the obvious facts. The provincial Government, outraged by Mr. Mainwaring's admission, still insisted that both rivers must be harnessed at the same time, exports or no exports. In Ottawa's view this is impossible.

OTTAWA has never changed its opinion that the Columbia must be developed first and the Peace some time—probably a long time—afterwards.

Nor has Ottawa changed its view that massive power exports must be prohibited. Evidently the Diefenbaker cabinet considered this old problem at length and decided to maintain the no-export policy followed by the Mackenzie King, Bennett and St. Laurent Governments since 1920. That decision is firm and unalterable.

To make good its policy of developing the Columbia in advance of the Peace, Ottawa must negotiate a treaty with the United States without much more delay. It cannot indefinitely postpone that scheme.

Otherwise British Columbia will face an electrical famine about ten years hence or else the Peace scheme will go ahead and, if it does, will block the Columbia. Then the people of British Columbia must pay forever the relatively high cost of Peace power when they should receive the dirt-cheap downstream power of the Columbia.

OTTAWA is highly optimistic about its negotiations with the United States which will get under way within a few days. It is realized, however, that the mortality rate of treaties submitted to the United States Senate is alarmingly high. Only a third of that body can kill any treaty, as many have been killed in the past.

But in this case the pressure to develop the Columbia and provide power is expected to pass the treaty before summer. Meanwhile the Canadian Parliament undoubtedly will approve it.

Assuming that Canada and the United States agree on the division of the downstream Columbia benefits, by the fifty-fifty formula of the International Joint Commission, that will not be the end of the problem and may be only the beginning.

BEFORE the Columbia can be dammed in Canada the British Columbia Government must issue a water licence. And before a licence is even considered there must be an agreement between Victoria and Ottawa setting up some kind of authority to finance and manage the whole project.

Ottawa favors a joint federal-provincial board and a division of the construction costs, but will Victoria agree? In the immense details of such an agreement there will be every chance for Victoria to argue and stall indefinitely.

Why should Victoria wish to stall? Only, as Ottawa sees it, because the Bennett Government is determined to develop the Peace and the Peace, as Mr. Mainwaring admits, cannot be developed if the Columbia scheme goes ahead now.

While Premier Bennett insists that the Wenner-Gren promoters are bound to harness the Peace forthwith whether they want to or not and whether they have markets or not, this contention is not taken very seriously in Ottawa.

WHATEVER the agreement between the provincial Government and the promoters may say, the Peace River scheme must be financed in the money market and cannot be financed, in Ottawa's view, unless it is assured of markets for its power.

Now that exports are prohibited, the only large market immediately available is in Vancouver where, Ottawa hopes, cheap Columbia power will supply all demands for years to come.

Nevertheless, Ottawa is haunted by the fear that Victoria will manage to delay the Columbia, not openly and directly, but by a ceaseless dispute of detail. And Ottawa, which cannot afford to quarrel openly with Premier Bennett at this stage, believes that only an enlightened public opinion will compel him in the end to accept the federal policy even if it means abandoning his Peace River dream.

In the Opinion of Our Correspondents

Whose Disaster?

Reading Bruce Hutchison's article headed "Disaster for Us," I wonder who he means by "us."

Does he mean only those who get their profits from imports and exports or the Canadian working people?

Most Japanese work is entirely inferior to British and other European articles. Perhaps he did see large machine shops, and excellent working conditions, etc., in Japan. But, is he qualified to judge the quality of the basic material used? In toys it is mostly inflammable celluloid used, in chinaware it is very low grade material and most often the painted adornment is very slap dash.

If Mr. Hutchison had spent a little more time away from the big merchants he would have found quite a few homes(?) where toys, paper fans, and other cheap articles are made. Here in Canada we have labor laws and other laws to cover the health and sanitary conditions of workmen and workshops.

What is the good of this if Japan is allowed to flood our markets with inferior goods. No matter how intricate or beautiful the patterns may be, they can still cause our Canadian workman a great deal of grief.

Japanese live on less than half what our Canadian workman can. Are we going to teach our children to eat rice instead of meat so that they too can live on the small pittance that the average Japanese family earn? Is this to be the Canadian heritage? Give our potential water power to U.S. magnates, our gas and lumber to others, and now our markets to Japanese goods?

Soon it will be "us" who will be needing C.A.R.E. parcels to take care of our children.

Beyond Understanding

The wonder of the age in which we live passeth all understanding. Men like gods—and monkey's pioneering once again in the interest of the human race. Poor little Miss "Sam!"

In the interest of genetics the wonder is why did they not choose one of the nobler species? In the name of progress may we ask "why time is being turned backward?"

The far from new god is rising to great heights and showing to all the absurdity of values both morally and financially.

This latest outcry for the abolishment of the death penalty is definitely the deep desire on the part of someone behind the scenes to throw the "human" race back into the "law of the jungle"—the result of two world wars is more than evident that we now approach the phase of the survival of the fittest—or richest!

The cry for peace has been drowned out by the noise of the rattling of billions upon billions in the interest of the war weapons' cabal.

Church and Taxes

Because of tax exemption the wealth of various churches in North America has become enormous, probably amounting to more than ten billion dollars. Their investments are well diversified, in many cases competing unfairly with tax-paying industries.

The Methodists recently sold a couple of hotels in California, in which state the Roman church owns and operates large wine and brandy business, as well as extensive cattle ranches and other industries. In Boston the R.C. hierarchy owns a multimillion theatre, one of the largest in the world. The Buffalo diocese also owns a movie. Quite a number of radio and TV stations are church-owned. There is reason to believe that quite a few of the large daily newspapers are partly, if not wholly, church-owned and controlled.

Control of this nature is not conducive to the objective presentation of news and views by mass media. Obviously nothing antagonistic to the interests of the owners will be allowed to be heard, read or seen by anyone. But plenty of favorable propaganda will be spread about, to maintain the tax-free status of the church industries.

I think it was the 18th President of the United States who said "I would suggest the taxation of all property whether church or corporation."

Waiting Hopefully

By DUART FARQUHARSON
From Rome

THE yellow plaster building on the Via Ancherusio isn't mentioned in the tourist guide books. In this beautiful city, it's rather ugly. It has no garden of ancient ruins—only small offices, cramped waiting rooms and a maze of long corridors.

But when a Canadian in this building speaks, his words travel instantaneously, as if by magic, to the unskilled unemployed and under-employed masses of southern Italy. And through this building, for the past two years, has passed the largest single group of immigrants to Canada.

You enter by a tiny, half-hidden door. Up the stairs scores of Italians—children, old ladies and middle-aged couples—are chattering outside the office doors. They hush as you pass. Their stare is not the casual one that tourists are accustomed to from Romans. It is deeper, almost frighteningly profound.

They seem to be thinking: Will my children be able to grow up so tall? Will we be able to learn his language?

Close Relatives

On a usual day about 130 people like these come to the Via Ancherusio as instructed by the Canadian immigration authorities in a letter they received six weeks earlier. They are the close relatives of Italians who have already been admitted to Canada and who have sponsored their applications.

If they are mother and child the so important letter probably arrived within a few days of the time the immigration officials here received the application from the husband in Canada. But if they are of the family of brother and sister, the letter took two, three, or even four years to arrive.

For every Italian who presents himself at the Via Ancherusio with his letter, there are hundreds of others who wait just as much to go to Canada. But they know that Canada only admits Italians who are sponsored by close relatives. They don't bother phoning up the Canadian office anymore; they just wait and listen.

This is one side of the problem—the human side. A rich country, a country that cries from the rooftops its need for a bigger population, shuts out thousands of people who want to be given the chance their own country is incapable of giving them. Hundreds of other people, close but not so close relatives that Canada says it will admit, are kept out for years because of what civil servants call the "backlog."

But there is another side of the problem. If Canada were to open wide the doors the ethnic balance of its people would quickly change; very soon Canada would become racially an Italian country. It is clear that the majority of Canadians do not want this; no government will therefore easily permit it.

Problem Continues

Yet the problem does not end there. Even with the slowing-down policy of the backlog, more Italians entered Canada during the last two years than any other single group. And there is much likelihood that this trend will continue. For, in spite of the major campaigns already launched to secure more immigrants from the United Kingdom, Germany and Holland, immigration officials are skeptical about the degree of success they can have when employment is so high in northern Europe.

It is indeed a cruel dilemma. If the backlog policy which officials here must administer is not humane, they have made administrative changes to reduce it. It used to be that sponsored applicants would get married, divorced or die before the immigration office reached them. This simply caused more red tape, took more official time, and put more names on the backlog.

The way to remove the backlog is obvious: Hire more staff to process applications. But if the present staff of about 60 people were increased, additional office space would be required. To move out of the Via Ancherusio would be in fact to change the immigration policy—to let in more Italians.

The other solution—to reduce the number of eligible Italians—has already been tried. When the immigration minister proposed in the spring of 1958 that brothers and sisters not be considered as "close relatives" under the sponsorship regulations, the public outcry was deafening. So rather than split up Italian families, the government let the old policy stand.

As an answer to the problem it is becoming increasingly apparent here that the old policy is no policy at all. Even as a stop-gap measure it is failing. Because of the high birthrate among Italian families applications from Canada increase each year. So does the backlog on the Via Ancherusio.

Fund Drive

From the New York Times

The brilliant success of Harvard's fund-raising campaign to strengthen its undergraduate training is "momentous," as President Pusey has said. It was also dramatic. With the $25-million gift of Harold S. Vanderbilt, which came in on the afternoon of the campaign's deadline, the total raised came to $82,697,470—the greatest drive of its kind in history.

It was boldly conceived and masterfully carried out, on a scale commensurate with the need. Like all private colleges today, Harvard has been faced with record-breaking admission demands and rocketing expenses, with a critical lag in making both ends meet. The proceeds of the drive will go for faculty salaries and new professorships, financial aid to undergraduates and a broad program of plant expansion, especially for student housing, now bursting at the seams.

Those who so effectively called for help and the Harvard cohorts who so fully responded have good reason to be proud. They have saved Harvard well and the cause of independent higher education everywhere. Their achievement will give great encouragement and hope to other institutions in meeting their own financial crises in these difficult days.

QUEBEC LIBERALS HOPEFUL OF BEATING NEW PREMIER

Alert Minds

LAST week, thanks to the kindness of the staff and students at the University of Victoria, I was permitted to read a number of short essays which the students had written on the theme, "Our society is in danger of mistaking comfort for civilization."

Ruth

The essays varied in style and quality, but, without exception, they revealed a sound sense of values among the young who, one day, will likely hold responsible positions in our society.

Now and then, a cheerful, youthful wisecrack really made me laugh.

My thanks, for instance, go to the young man who wrote, "The day the Roman Empire fell was the day it stopped sitting on the floor to eat and began to lie on couches."

(Ha! Ha! Nice work, boy. Nowadays, of course, we put the foil-wrapped food on a tray, and lo! in the lazy-boy chair so we won't miss the television program!)

Later in his essay, the same student asked, "Is the boat of Democracy about to founder in the storm because all the deckhands are below watching television?"

"Today, parents do not raise children, but television raises Wyatt Earps," he concluded. "And these Earps do not sit on hard saddles, but recline on soft couches."

The acquisition of heated houses, cushioned armchairs, air-conditioners, automatic appliances, electric shoe polishers, and automobiles, has become the pinnacle of achievement, according to another student.

"I am your conscience, Canada," a young man wrote in an essay that was well and imaginatively written with a strong sense of Canadianism. "Let not the glory of Carleton Place, La Salle, and Vimy Ridge, be mocked by worship of Sullivan, Bardot and Maple Leaf Gardens."

"Comfort, that large and menacing parasite of civilization, is masquerading as its host in our society," one essay began.

"We 'openers of cans' and 'pressers of buttons' must realize that civilization cannot exist without an alert mind," wrote the young woman who described our society as "a world of instant puddings and frozen orange juice."

"We think we are more cultured, more intelligent than the Greeks, Romans and Egyptians because we have all the modern conveniences," a woman student wrote. "They had their music, their paintings, their poetry, and their statues (which) were and still are the works of a highly-civilized people. . . . A society can call itself civilized when it has contributed ideals, and beautiful pleasing things to the art of the world. . . . Because of Hemingways, Einsteins and Van Goghs we can call ourselves civilized. Not because of our refrigerators, heating systems and television sets."

"We are fast becoming a sedentary society lulled by advertising propaganda into believing that life can be lived on the installment plan," wrote another young woman.

"Who (in our society) would visit an art gallery, attend a concert, or listen to a philosopher's comments on content and happiness, when, instead, they could indulge in an erotic house party or a drinking bout?" asked a student who concluded, rather pessimistically, that the erotic house party or the drinking bout would be the popular choice.

But, for my money, I'll take the essay of the young woman who listed many of the comforts of this age, asked whether they were the important accomplishments of a worthy civilization, and then wrote:

"Our social benefits have not erased crime from our society. Our democratic principles have not brought us closer to living in harmony with other men. Our television sets have not raised our cultural standards. Our system of education has not produced a higher level of thinking. We still respond to the loudest talker, the most inviting promises, the brightest advertisement."

"It is no achievement of our civilization to have shorter working hours if we do not use our (leisure) time for self-improvement, to have the most modern schools if we do not educate the people who attend them, to build the strongest military force if we do not understand or believe in what we are prepared to fight for, to preach democratic principles if we do not practice them."

In a column, I can't do justice to these essays. Some of their statements may be open to argument, but I was impressed by the students' sincerity, and by their critical questioning of popular values.

More power to these students, and to the University of Victoria for having set them such a timely theme.

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberal party is growing optimistic about its chances in the forthcoming Quebec elections. Party circles here don't consider Premier Antonio Barrette as formidable an opponent as the late Premier Paul Sauve.

They see in the Quebec election a glimmer of hope that the Conservative tide, which has swept them out of office in every Canadian province but Newfoundland, can be reversed.

The Liberals admit that they wouldn't have had much of a chance to win the election—it is expected to come in early summer or late spring—had Mr. Sauve lived. During his brief term, he changed the whole outlook of the Union Nationale party and made it so dynamic that many of his adversaries were disconcerted.

There is little doubt Mr. Barrette will follow the footsteps of Mr. Sauve—he has said so himself—but the Liberals doubt that he will be as highly regarded by the voters as Mr. Sauve.

He was, they say, merely a compromise choice for the premier, a compromise made to save the Union Nationale from a serious split.

Another question arousing interest here is whether a Diefenbaker-Barrette alliance is developing.

Mr. Barrette is highly respected in federal government circles and does not conceal his support for Mr. Diefenbaker. It is an open secret that Mr. Diefenbaker would have made him a cabinet minister had Mr. Barrette chosen to run in the federal elections and had been elected.

Seal Conference In Tokyo Next Year

MOSCOW (UPI)—Canada, the United States, Japan and the Soviet Union have agreed to hold the fourth annual fur seal conference in Tokyo next year.

The site was picked at the end of a 10-day conference of seal experts from the four nations, which ended here Wednesday.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

The Alcoholic Husband

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic
and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

Every so often a wife asks me what on earth she can do to help her husband, who is drinking himself to death. She says he doesn't seem to realize what he is doing to himself, his career, and his children; he just won't admit that he is an alcoholic; and he has become so extremely sensitive to the slightest word of criticism that, if anything is said, he promptly flies off the handle. Recently, I read James L. Free's remarkable book, called "Just One More," concerning the problem drinker. (Coward-McCann, N.Y., 1955). He says that usually there is nothing that a wife can do to help her husband while he is slipping down hill into alcoholism and ruin. But eventually, there may come a time when, as in his own case, the wife can start him back on the road to recovery. As he says, there was only one way in which it could have been done, and she had the wisdom to take that way.

Alvarez

One noon, as he was getting over an awful hangover, she very quietly, and without allowing the slightest criticism to come into her voice or even into her eyes, told her husband exactly what he had done the afternoon and evening before. She just described the events dispassionately, as a newspaper reporter might have done. She told him how he had come home three hours late for an important business appointment. The man was still there waiting for him. She described how her husband had skidded the car off the driveway into a tree, and then into a box hedge.

She described his falling into the hedge and being helped out by the visitor who, obviously, was puzzled. She described how her husband had roughly repelled his friend's help, and had told him to keep his blanket-blanket hands off of him. She told of the abusive talk he had used to her, to his son and to the visitor. At the dinner table, he got sick, passed out, and had to be put to bed. Most of this was news to Mr. Free, because he had so largely blacked out that he had almost no memory of what had happened. For the first time he saw the picture of his behavior in all its ugly detail. He saw himself as he would have seen some other man who had made a pig and a spectacle of himself.

With this, Mr. Free surrendered. He knew then that liquor had him licked; at last he was humble; he was afraid, and he wanted help. As he said, if he hadn't come to this extremely important moment of surrender, he would have gone on to end up either in a mental hospital or skid row, or in his grave.

At last he saw what all alcoholics eventually must come to see, which is that he was the sort of man who cannot take one drink and then quit. Because of this, if he was ever to stay sober, he would have to quit entirely, and never touch the stuff again. That would be his only salvation.

In his book, Mr. Free discusses ably all the various ways in which an alcoholic can try to get on the wagon and stay there—as through Alcoholics Anonymous, Alcohol Information Centres, a stay in a mental hospital, treatment by physicians, or by psychiatrists, or by clergymen, lay therapists or an out-patient clinic.

Quebec Liberal Chief 'Named' for Remark

QUEBEC (CP)—Georges Lapalme, 53-year-old Liberal opposition leader, was Wednesday "named" by Speaker Maurice Teller for accusing Premier Antonio Barrette of "dictatorial" conduct in the legislative assembly.

Naming a member deprives him of his right to speak for the rest of the sitting—a few minutes in this case.

The incident flared up unexpectedly toward the close of a quiet sitting during which a Liberal opposition motion had been under discussion.

Premier Barrette rose to move the legislative assembly adjourn, 50 minutes before the regular time.

Mr. Lapalme quietly objected, but Mr. Barrette made his motion again, saying he had urgent business to deal with and did not have to justify his action.

Mr. Lapalme said Mr. Barrette was conducting himself in a "dictatorial" manner in forcing the motion through.

E and N Drops Car as Traffic Falls

Smaller Diesel Coming

A new, smaller rail car, capable of carrying 50 passengers, will replace the present 90-passenger E. & N. Railway rail car next week, according to D. C. Hartley, company superintendent.

He said falling passenger patronage was responsible for the move.

"At present the big rail car carries only about 25 passengers each way on its daily run from here to Courtenay and back," he said, "and many of those are for short trips."

"It is not right to tie up the larger car when it could be used to advantage on some other route," he said.

Although the new car is smaller, it will operate on the same schedule as the larger, and will provide the same standard of travel comfort. It also is diesel powered, like the larger car.

The original diesel car, built by the Budd company, started service on E and N lines in July, 1955.

"It is possible that we will bring it back for the summer, when there is more passenger traffic," Mr. Hartley said.

MORE FREIGHT

"The Vancouver Island roads are good now, and people can drive their own cars to Nanaimo in 1½ hours," he said.

"Most prefer to travel that way, and have their cars with them at the end of their trips."

Although the passenger picture is bleak, Mr. Hartley said, the freight business is good. There is a steady flow from the Port Alberni paper mill, he said, and movement of logs from the Nitinat area to the east coast has provided new revenue.

15 PLATOONS OF MOTHERS SET TO MARCH

(From Duncan Bureau) Fifteen teams of marching mothers are set for the annual fund-raising campaign Saturday night on behalf of the Kinsmen Child Care and Pledge Fund.

The drive has been given official sanction by the city of Duncan and North Cowichan municipality.

First donation, from Duncan Kinsmen Club, was made to Mrs. D. C. Morton, a marching mother and wife of the North Cowichan reeve.

In a pre-campaign meeting Kinsman Bob Howard told team captains that $100,000 of the $325,000 provincial budget will be used in a speech therapy program.

"It is dear to the heart of Duncan residents because it started here with 15 children four years ago," he said.

Blood donor more than 60 times, Robert Warren, 48-year-old shipyard worker who lives at 3973 Saanich Road, was among 65 who Wednesday received gold pins and certificates at Red Cross House for their numerous blood contributions.

Answer Phone Plea to RCMP

(From Duncan Bureau)

Duncan RCMP detachment will be asked by Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce to take steps to ensure that their phones are "adequately manned" at all times.

The action is the outgrowth of a complaint made last month by member H. J. Vickers that it had taken him more than half an hour to contact police by phone to report a break-in at his store.

The chamber at that time wrote the city of Duncan to ascertain if the detachment was up to full strength, and was informed this week that because the Duncan office is headquarters for both the city and the municipality, seven or eight constables are available in case of emergency. Members said that if this is the case, then it is not asking too much to have a policeman answering the phone at all times.

Pilot Blamed In Death Dive

OTTAWA (CP)—A transport department report Wednesday on a Vancouver Island aircraft accident put the onus of blame on the pilot.

H. Lutz of Vancouver was killed July 22 when his Cessna 170B seaplane stalled while circling over water near Qualicum Beach Inn and crashed.

"The pilot failed to maintain sufficient speed and allowed the aircraft to stall at too low an altitude to effect recovery," the department report concluded.

(From Duncan Bureau) Cowichan Agricultural Society will hold its 92nd annual meeting Saturday, starting at noon, at the Alderlea tea room in Duncan.

Nine nominees listed for six vacant seats on the board of directors are Ben Harrison, Victor Williams, Peter Groenewold, Matthew Moir, Ridley Wilson, Harry Standen, W. Wohlers, G. A. Baumgart, and Miss Mary Waldon, a former president. Voting will be by ballot.

A special vote will be taken on a recommendation of the board of directors that $3,300 be paid for the Cowichan Exhibition Board in order that the exhibition grounds can be cleared of all debts this year.

As a change this year from the usual routine of speakers on agricultural subjects, G. E. Wellburn, of Deerholme, well-known logging superintendent and collector, will speak on early logging in the Cowichan district.

WINTER WORK AID

B.C. to Pay $300,000

The British Columbia cabinet Wednesday approved a $300,000 contribution to municipal winter works programs throughout British Columbia.

A special warrant was required as the expenditure was not foreseen in last year's budget.

Under the Dominion-provincial-municipal winter program, the federal government pays 50 per cent of labor costs. The province pays 25 per cent, or 50 per cent in the case of employees who were on social assistance for at least three months prior to last September 16.

The order-in-council did not specify which municipalities have qualified for provincial grants nor how much any municipality will receive. The sharing of municipal labor costs is an additional winter work plan to the province's own list of special projects recently announced to the value of almost $2,000,000.

... SPEECH

Rec' organization which was dropped in the early '50s.

The throne speech said measures would be introduced to expand public library services.

It said the government would be asked to set up a superannuation program for employees of hospitals operated under the BCHS. A broadening of the provincial probation service will be proposed, a new "Wills Act" an act to permit revision of the statutes this year.

TRADING STAMPS

The government will propose a legislative committee to study the matter of trading stamps and "similar sales promotion devices"—probably including so-called "gimmicks" in supermarket sales.

The speech noted a broadening of the legislation of 1959 which offers long-range, low interest loans to farmers for land-clearing purposes.

"Legislation to provide for the creation of an official British Columbia flag will be placed before you," the House was told. There were earlier reports this might be an adaptation of the blue and white centennial flag familiar in 1958, bearing a green and yellow provincial crest.

POWER BONDS

The throne speech confirmed earlier speculation also that the government would float a public bond issue this year to raise expansion capital for B.C. Power Commission. Last year, the public quickly picked up a small-denomination issue for the PGE railway of over $30,000,000.

Increased expenditures for park development and a speeded-up program of public works were forecast.

To be included is money for a winter works program which was omitted last year and required a special warrant this week.

Specific works projects mentioned were a new vocational trades school at Prince George and a courthouse at Mission. Highway construction will be increased.

(The premier had mentioned a billion-dollar program for road improvement over the next decade).

DRUGS AND DRINK

There will be a wider campaign to encourage consumption of B.C. food products.

"The work of both the Alcoholism Foundation of B.C. and the Narcotic Addiction Foundation of B.C. has received constant support and encouragement... you will be asked to make provision for extension of these programs," the speech noted.

Legislation will be introduced to ensure protection of archeological and historical sites and objects in B.C.

An increase in expenditure for the Youth Crew Training Program which employs boys in summer woodland recreation areas is also proposed.

The throne speech repeated the recent assurance of the premier that the government will continue to press for the earliest possible development of the Columbia River "... on terms consistent with the best interests of our people."

It also reiterated that the plan for development of the Peace River hydro potential will be fully investigated by the Public Utilities Commission when it is released from study now underway by the Water Rights Branch.

In the course of the address, the Lieutenant-Governor noted "with deep regret" the absence from the house of the premier, Oak Bay MLA P. A. Gibbs and T. A. Bate (S.C. Vancouver-Point Grey), each of whom is recovering from illness.

He expressed sorrow at the recent deaths of a former Lieutenant-Governor Eric W. Hamber, and former cabinet ministers H. G. T. Perry and Frank Putnam.

City Police Budget Down By $6,000

City police commission today received a preliminary police department budget of $608,755 for 1960, down almost $6,000 from last year.

But current police union negotiations for a 17 per cent wage increase may boost the final figure before the official budget is adopted.

The commission also received a preliminary estimate of $21,898 for the police court 1960 budget.

PARIS (CP)—An influenza epidemic sweeping most of France has laid up 150,000 persons in the eastern department of Moselle, it was reported today, but health ministry officials here said the epidemic is of a mild nature.

Health department estimates in Metz, main city of Moselle, said those affected represented 20 per cent of the population of the area. In one village 500 of the 900 inhabitants were bedded down with flu.

Meanwhile, in Geneva, a child was reported Wednesday to have died in the current flu wave, the second death since the weekend. More than 500 cases have been reported in the Geneva area.

Elsewhere in Europe, more than one-third of the members of West Germany's lower house are off ill, and in Austria the government has ordered vaccination of all railway and transport personnel.

CARDINALS STRICKEN

Two cardinals were unable to attend the Rome synod today because of attacks of influenza. They were Clement Cardinal Micara, vicar of Pope John for the City of Rome, and Alfredo Cardinal Ottaviani, secretary of the Vatican's Congregation of the Holy Office.

The health ministry in London said there was no heavy incidence of the flu in Britain.

In the United States, flu has struck at scattered parts of the country, with the most concentrated outbreak in California. Los Angeles officials report that during the first three weeks of this year, 127 persons there died of pneumonia and influenza—more than double the total for a similar period last year.

The breakdown was 109 pneumonia deaths and 18 from influenza itself.

HEART ATTACK Wednesday killed Oswaldo Aranha of Brazil, a former president of the UN General Assembly.

Police 'Disarmament' Plan

force with force

A suggestion that police should abandon firearms was rejected by two local police chiefs today.

New Westminster police commissioner M. S. Evers says firearms for police "are just a waste of money" and should be replaced by nightsticks.

He commented during a discussion of improvements for a police target range that not much practice was needed to fire warning shots in the air.

"You don't want to shoot in the air when someone shoots at you," Chief Charles Mackie replied.

"Where there's force, you must combat it with force," said Victoria Chief John Blackstock.

He was backed up by Saanich Chief W. A. Pearson, who admitted he would "just as soon see police without weapons," but said "police in Canada will carry guns as long as the U.S. border is so close and guns are so easily available here."

Disarmament of police would have to be done on a national scale, he thought.

Evers had said that in New Westminster, "I don't think firearms have been used to any great extent to apprehend criminals."

He said nightsticks would give police more respect as well as authority and would also help to curb rowdiness and other trouble caused by the younger set.

Victoria police carry sticks or truncheons in addition to revolvers.

LIQUOR IN SCHOOL

WEST VANCOUVER—School board officials made an unprecedented policy decision Tuesday by permitting liquor in school. They decided to allow the Kinsmen Club to serve liquor in the school at its May convention.

Mothers To March Saturday

Nearly 3,000 community-minded mothers will make a door-to-door canvass throughout Greater Victoria Saturday starting at 7 p.m.

This is the 1960 Mothers' March campaign to raise funds for the comprehensive health program operated by the B.C. Foundation for Child Care, Poliomyelitis and Rehabilitation.

Current projects include the organization of Salk vaccine clinics throughout the province early this year, and a speech and hearing program jointly operated by the foundation and the Health Centre for Children in Vancouver.

The Foundation has given a $75,000 construction grant for the addition of a new wing to the neurological department at the University of British Columbia.

LUCE REFUSED TO BE FOOLED

It was battle of strategy on this key play early in third period of hockey game at Memorial Arena Wednesday night as Victoria's Gordie Fashoway cruised in for shot against Calgary goalie Lucien Dechene. Cougar forward lost out in duel as Dechene refused to be fooled out of position and then slid across to block Fashoway's shot. Stampeders broke 2-2 deadlock two minutes later to win 3-2.

SPORTS DIARY

By JIMMY CANNON

Our national humor demands that the hick is forever a clown who is trimmed by metropolitan scoundrels in any proposition more complicated than the slopping of hogs. But Bob Feller, a country kid, who became famous in the big cities of the major leagues, refutes the established legend that the rube never is able to conquer his original environment. Maturity has turned him into a poised and prosperous businessman-of sophisticated habits.

It might be an exaggeration to describe him as chic because he runs with elegant people of taste and belongs in their company. On a Sunday morning, he breakfasts in the Plaza Hotel and his discreet haberdashery suggests a man who trained on Park Avenue instead of an Iowa farm.

He doesn't appear uncomfortable when he hangs on the tails to go to the opera, which he attends regularly, but he is blasé enough to concede that his wife is the music buff. He handles the small talk of the international set when he gets mixed up with them in El Morocco, which is one of his stops when he is on the town. During the baseball season, he is glibly intelligent when he conducts a sports forum on a Cleveland television station.

He travels in his own plane, which he pilots, and his presence improves the numerous banquets he addresses. The card in his wallet identifies him as Robert W. Feller, president of the Feller-Olstead Co., insurance, Cleveland, Ohio.

So many of his kind bore you with remembrances of their exciting pasts, but Feller can fade you on most subjects. He is still proud of his rural beginnings and insists farm work shaped his greatness as a pitcher.

I asked him why so many of this generation's players burn out quickly.

"My greatest blessing is I was raised on a farm and lived on it for six years after I came to the big leagues," Feller replied. "I worked on the farm, but I didn't have to. I did the chores. Chopped wood. Milked the cows. In the winter, I did a lot of hunting, took stretching exercises and worked with dumb-bells. But it's difficult to do that now."

Most Should Have Quit Year Before

It offended him, explained Feller, when old players complained about the diminished skills of his generation. He declines to compare the modern athlete with those of his time because he believes it an expression of rudeness and also an opinion which can't be substantiated.

"It's more difficult for them to develop and stay in condition," said Feller. "There's been a population explosion. Most of them grow up in urban areas as the rural places become crowded. They must resort to synthetic forms of exercise to develop their bodies. They don't do the manual labor we did."

"Another of my blessings is I became an adult without television," Feller said, "but I cashed in on its popularity through the baseball pension plan. Television is not conducive to developing athletes. The next generation will probably think baseball is just another television program with no one getting shot."

Service in the navy took four of Feller's greatest years. "Forty-six was my best year," Feller said. "I came out of the navy that year. I won 26 games, broke the strikeout record, pitched a no-hitter and a couple of one-hitters. I was 27 then."

Those three years might have given him enough strike-outs to pass Christy Mathewson and Grover Cleveland Alexander, who come after Walter Johnson in that department.

"You can't saw sawdust," he said. "There's no way I could have pitched those years. But it would have been fun to see if I could have passed Matty and Alexander. I don't know if I could have ever gotten near Johnson, but it would have been fun to try."

I talked about Stan Musial and Ted Williams hanging on after their talents have been blunted by time.

"I hope it's not true in their cases," said Feller. "But 99 per cent of us, we find, during the last year we spend in professional sports, that we should have quit the year before."

TRADITION IN DANGER IF AUGUSTANA LOSES

SIoux FALLS, S.D. (AP) — There's an old tradition here at Augustana College that is likely to be scrapped next fall.

It says the student council president of the school that loses the Augustana-Morningside football game loses his pants.

The Augustana students recently elected Miss Jo Anne Williams as their new president.

Dave Prolongs Toronto Visit

Though he couldn't stick in the National Hockey League, Dave Creighton apparently still has that big league scoring touch. It may prolong his stay this time, too.

Up on his third trip from the minors—this time as an emergency replacement—the 29-year-old centre shook off the effects of a 15-stitch head cut Wednesday night and fired a third-period goal to give Toronto Maple Leafs a 2-1 victory over Chicago Black Hawks.

Meanwhile in New York, the floundering Rangers—37 points behind league-leading Montreal—fought the Canadiens to a 2-2 tie before 15,260 fans.

NO MUZZLE?

But the last-place Rangers weren't able to muzzle classy Jean Beliveau and the big centre figured in both Montreal goals to climb into a tie for the individual scoring leadership.

In Toronto, a crowd of 13,632 saw Creighton star in a listless game that gave Leafs their first win in four starts and moved them to within a point of second-place Detroit Red Wings who were idle along with Boston Bruins.

The Maple Leafs recalled Creighton last weekend from Rochester Americans of the American League as a sub-substitute for Larry Regan, sidelined with a back injury.

Creighton, struck on the head by a shot from Leaf defenceman Carl Brewer in the first period, earned the praise of coach Punch Imlach after the game.

"HERE TO STAY"

"He's here to stay as long as he keeps up that kind of play," Imlach said. At one time or another, the Port Arthur native has been the property of all six NHL clubs since making his first jump to the big time in the 1948-49 campaign.

Chicago goalie Glenn Hall turned in a sparkling game with 28 stops but couldn't make up for Hawks' offensive deficiencies. Toronto's Johnny Bower turned back 22 shots.

Canadiens outshot New York 34-24 but saw their latest winning streak snapped at six games when rookie Ken Schinkel scored for the Rangers at 8:48 of the final period.

Beliveau scored Montreal's first goal 30 seconds after the start of the second period on a pass from Dickie Moore and assisted when linemate Marcel Bonin put the Canadiens in front at the five-minute mark of the third period.

George (Red) Sullivan, New York's sparky team captain, scored the game's first goal in the opening period with Bob Kabel assisting.

Dechene Sharp As Stamps Edge Cats In 3-2 Battle

Stampeders 3, Cougars 2

By DOUG PEDEN

Calgary Stampeders are out of the hockey doldrums today because Lucien Dechene closed the door on an old friend.

Big Luce slammed the portal on Gordie Fashoway, a puck pal for four Western Hockey League seasons, while both were toiling for the former New Westminster Royals.

Dechene, who has made a lot of headlines with his spectacular goaltending, left the Royals four years ago and this season shifted to the Quebec League, while Fashoway, the WHL's all-time goal-scoring king, transferred his hockey allegiance to Victoria Cougars.

Called back west last week by the stumbling Stampeders, Dechene renewed acquaintances with Fashoway for the first time this season at Memorial Arena Wednesday night and the Cougar sniper couldn't get to first base against portly Luce as the Stamps ended a six-game losing streak by clipping the Cats 3-2.

Several times Fashoway fired shots at the Calgary goal, but his big chance came early in the third period with the clubs deadlocked 2-2.

The Victoria winger alertly intercepted defenceman Doug Barkley's pass in the Calgary zone and cruised in unmolested for a shot. Dechene refused to be fooled out of position and finally slammed the door with a sliding save.

Two minutes later rangy Terry Gray banged home Fred Hucul's pass and the Cougars were in front.

That was it for the Cougars, who were unable to get rolling all night against the persistent fore-checking of the Stampeders forwards.

Although the Stamps earned the two points that moved them within a single point of fifth-place Winnipeg on the strength of hard work and hustle, they were probably lucky to catch the Cats on an off night.

Alert all the way, the Obviously missing the services of defenceman Jack Bionda, who was sitting out the first game of a two-game suspension, the Cats were never able to get untracked on attack against the persistent fore-checking of the Cougars.

With Jim Hay, Pete Wright and Ron Matthews turning in a solid effort as they shared the Victoria blue-line duties, the Cats ran into most of their troubles trying to start rushes out of their own zone.

But they kept trying and twice came from behind to tie the score, making it anybody's game until well into the third period, when the Cats needed only a bit of sharper sniping or a slip by Dechene to go in front.

Dechene ended up with a total of 27 saves and Victoria's Marcel Pelletier turned aside 29 Calgary shots.

Although still holding a firm grip on third place, the Cats now have a tougher task ahead if they are going to catch the runner-up Seattle Totems, who have a six-point buffer.

The Cougars are now idle until Saturday night, when they take on the Stampeders on a return bout at Memorial Arena.

Trail Brings Out Old-Time Pattern

TRAIL (CP) — Trail Smoke Eaters dipped deep into their storied past for the tactics that allowed them to nip the touring Moscow Selects 7-6 in an exhibition hockey game before 6,000 cheering fans Wednesday night.

The Smoke Eaters brought out the checkerboard passing game from the mothballs and set back the Russians 3-1 in the opening period. Selects rallied to take a 5-4 lead in the second period, only to have Trail storm back in the final 20 minutes and outscore them 3-1.

Oak Bay Scores Second Shutout In Soccer Loop

Watch Oak Bay! That's the cry in Inter-High Senior Boys' Soccer League circles today after Oak Bay marked up its second straight shutout.

The Bays, scoring a goal in each half, blanked Belmont, 2-0, at Carnarvon Park Wednesday. Last week, they humbled Esquimalt, 6-0.

Larry McCann and Garry Wilcox scored Wednesday's goals.

CONE-SHAPE CAR AIMED AT 500 MILES PER HOUR

LOS ANGELES (AP)—An East Los Angeles doctor is preparing a jet-propelled automobile for an attempt at a speed record on the salt flats at Bonneville, Utah.

"Our goal is 500 miles an hour," says Dr. Nathan Ostich, who has been racing at Bonneville for years. "We expect to make the record attempt Aug. 14 to 20."

The car employs a turbo-jet engine. The speedster is cone-shaped, gives the appearance of a missile, is 28½ feet long and 48 inches in diameter.

Disc brakes are used on the wheels to slow the car at speeds under 175 miles an hour. High-speed braking will be by parachute housed in the tail section.

Dr. Ostich hopes to crack the world record of 394.2 miles an hour established in 1947 by the late John Cobb.

Thistles Trounce Hockey Tourists

KENORA, Ont. (CP)—The Shigeru Shimada were the intermediate Kenora Thistles erupted for eight goals in the third period Wednesday night to crush the Japanese Olympic hockey team 11-4 in an exhibition game.

The loss was the 10th in 12 starts for the light Japanese club. They have won one and tied another. Friday they play in Fort William. The Thistles toured Japan in 1954.

Kenora jumped to a 3-1 lead in the first period and held that margin until early in the third when they got into high gear.

Merv Dubchuk, Johnny Harpell, and Bob Darcis, each scored twice for the Thistles, who play in the Ontario-Minnesota League. Scoring single goals were Laurie Mitani, Frank Leroux, Luke Bouchard, Brian Leroux and Art Brown. Takashi Kakihara, Toshiniko Yamada, Masao Murano and Bill Will Sell Lord Renraw For $35,000

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lord Renraw, six-year-old bay gelding who was leading British Columbia-bred money-winner in 1959, is for sale for $35,000.

Bill Lochead, owner-trainer said he has received two tempting offers for the horse, one from a well-known Toronto horseman and, one from a Californian.

Lord Renraw won eight of 14 starts last year, including two in Edmonton and one in Seattle and earned $21,045.

Lochead rejected a $25,000 offer for the horse in July and it went on to win $12,000.

Island Chess Loop To Start Feb. 13

Schedules and rules for league competition have been announced by officials of the Vancouver Island Chess League.

Competition will be between clubs from Victoria, Nanaimo, Courtenay and Alberni during a season lasting from Feb. 13 through May 21.

Teams in "A" divisions will consist of 10 players, and four players will make up each "B" division team.

Over-all points will decide standings. The number of matches won will be used to break ties.

B.C. Accused of Distorting Amount of University Aid

University of British Columbia Alma Mater Society attacked a B.C. government publication this week for "distorting" the picture of provincial university aid.

The society quoted a story in a recent issue of B.C. Government News which said B.C. contributes more to its university than Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba to their universities.

The society wrote to its members that in fact the B.C. government contributes just under $500 per student, "whereas Alberta and Saskatchewan both give well over $600 per student and Manitoba gives over $700 per student."

These figures are according to estimates of the National Conference of Canadian Universities, the society says.

BEST WAY

The government figures were a comparison of what each of the western provinces contributed per capita of population in the province, rather than the donation per student.

Both comparisons could be numerically correct, although the Alma Mater Society points out, "This grant computed in dollars per student is surely the best way of indicating the financial status of a university."

The picture was further clouded by decimal place errors which crept into the story in the government publication. It said B.C., according to a 1958 survey, budgeted $4,334,000 for UBC—45 per cent of the university budget or $291.46 per capita of population. It said Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba give $191.81, $242.43 and $191.64 per capita respectively.

ANOTHER ERROR

The figures were intended to be $2.91 for B.C., $1.92 for Alberta, $2.42 for Saskatchewan and $1.92 for Manitoba. Education department officials said the decimal error did not affect the percentages and they defended the contention of the article that B.C. does give more to its university on a provincial population basis than the other western provinces.

However, they added, the figures quoted "were not the latest figures" which was a further error. The situation would be corrected in a future article.

Pending presentation of reports and accounts in the legislature, the newer figures could not be released.

Since New York city set up an air pollution control department in 1952, sootfall now is about half what it was in 1945.

SECOND FIRST BABY

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Frederick Chu today delivered the first baby of the new year, for the second time this month.

The five-pound, 13-ounce daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sam was the first baby born here in the Chinese New Year. Dr. Chu delivered one of the three babies that tied for first place Jan. 1 in the New Year's stork derby.

The Girl Who Has Never Felt Pain

LONDON (Reuters) — The medical mystery of a battered teen-age girl who has never felt pain was disclosed here today.

The British Medical Research Council, identifying the girl only as a 14-year-old Londoner, said she is covered with the scars of cuts, burns and abrasions she didn't feel.

She had accidentally bitten off the tip of her tongue, crushed her fingers in a door and fractured her right thigh—but felt no pain.

When she was younger, a playmate yanked out handfuls of her hair—again without producing pain.

The council said doctors have put her through exhaustive examinations and admitted: "The nature of the mechanism at fault remains unknown."

Doctors have failed to disturb her with electric shocks, injections which should produce headaches and by pressing her eyeballs.

One doctor even went as far as dusting her with enough itching powder to drive any other person into a frenzy. It had no effect.

The council said the girl must take special care to avoid injuring herself without knowing it. Otherwise, she is normal and intelligent.

The Chinese learned how to make silk cloth 4,000 years ago.

FIRST BRAIN SURGERY 1,400 YEARS AGO

HULL, Eng. (Reuters)—Delicate brain surgery was performed in Britain by the Saxons 1,400 years ago, an archaeologist said Wednesday.

A skull, with a round hole cut in the top, was found in a Saxon cemetery near here by archaeologist P. A. Rahtz, who believes its owner was subjected to the Saxon version of trepanning — one of the most delicate forms of brain surgery.

"The trepanning, which in the earliest times had to be performed with a flint knife, was presumably done to relieve localized pressure on the brain," said Rahtz.

The bone around the hole had healed, so Rahtz believes the operation was successful and the patient recovered.

'THE FLAME OF POWER'

This is the fourth in a series of articles based on the book "The Flame of Power" by Peter C. Newman. It continues the story, started Wednesday, of the fabulous Steinberg brothers who built their mother's corner store into a multi-million dollar enterprise. Book was published by Longmans, Green and Company, Toronto.

By PETER C. NEWMAN

The rate of the Steinbergs' grocery chain's expansion is set by the training pace of the company's sales forces. Every new unit requires about 75 men and women, although increasing mechanization had raised the productivity of Steinberg labor so significantly that annual sales per man-hour increased 35 per cent between 1950 and 1955.

NEW VICE-PRESIDENT — W. E. S. Briggs, director of the CBC's Maritime region, was appointed vice-president of the corporation Tuesday succeeding Ernest Bushnell who resigned in December.

NEWS BRIEFS

Winners of Victoria Duplicate Bridge Club tournament in Helyrood House Tuesday night were:

Section 1: 1. Lew Stewart and Tony Marsh. 2 and 3 (tied) Phil Hagen and Ricki Nickells, Dorothy McConnell and Freda Small. 4. Marjorie Crookston and Bill Simpson-Balkie. 5. Elizabeth Warren and Harry Carter. 6. Marjorie Beale and Jim Duprau.

Section 2: 1. Ann Kocutyn and Otto Leesment. 2. Laura Tingley and Hilda Price. 3. George Morgan and Joe Lukas. 4. Jack Goldie and Dick Lipsey. 5. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Artlett. 6. Doug Hawkes and Harry Brawn.

Mrs. Edith Chesman, past president of Besant Lodge will address a public meeting sponsored by the Theosophical Society, room 113, 745 Yates Street, Sunday at 7.45 p.m.

Fish Sex Changed By Uranium Water

WASHINGTON (AP) — Female fish can be transformed into males if exposed to water sufficiently contaminated with uranium, two Russian scientists said Wednesday. Such transformation may reduce the number of fish in the world in a short time, the Russians said in a report translated by the U.S. central intelligence agency.

Nearly 60 of the company's store managers began as clerks. Their average age is 35; they earn $10,000 a year. Promotion is based on the ability to meet sales quotas.

The Steinbergs opened the first store outside Montreal in 1939, at Arvida, Quebec, following a request from housewives whose husbands were moved there by the Aluminum Co. of Canada. In the summer of 1959, the Steinbergs purchased for a reported $50 million, the 38 Ontario stores of Grand Union Ltd. They have also established a few outlets in the Maritimes. "It is not impossible," says Nathan Steinberg, "that one day we will become national."

Friends Not Hurt

There is, in fact, only one location in Canada that will probably never have a Steinberg store. Remembering the friendly rivalry of the small shopkeepers in the upper section of Boulevard St. Laurent in Montreal, where Ida Steinberg opened her little delicatessen in 1917, the Steinbergs have vowed not to take away their business with a supermarket.

Ida Steinberg emigrated to Canada in 1911 from Debrecen in Hungary, where her husband had been a baker. Six years later she opened her store at 4419 Boulevard St. Laurent in the district where most of the newcomers to the city had settled.

Sam's first after-school job was hawking papers at St. Catherine and Bleury. He set pins at bowling alleys in the evening, until he quit school at 14 to help his mother.

Cart First Prize

He won a delivery cart by sending in 50 Comfort Soap coupons, later he bought a chestnut pony called Nellie, and eventually he mechanized his rounds with a Model T truck.

Sam and his brothers learned many of the selling tricks that have made them millionaires by watching their mother's early struggles.

The Steinberg grocery store was unique even in those humble days. Sam made his deliveries according to a posted schedule, instead of waiting for a full load to accumulate.

Most of the stores in the neighborhood had no attractive displays. Ida dressed up the narrow showcase and the interior with sales-influencing exhibits. Her apparent generosity in popping in a few extra apples or cookies into a customer's bag after she had weighed the paid-for amount was calculated to spread her reputation beyond the block's shoppers.

4 Stores In 1930

The size of the business was doubled in 1919, when Sam negotiated the rental of an adjoining store for $60 a month. The business had expanded to four units when Steinberg Service Stores Ltd. was incorporated in 1930. Authorized capital was $35,000, comprising 350 common shares, distributed among the family.

Financing of the growth that followed was entirely out of accumulated profits and bank overdrafts. Ida Steinberg managed the Monkland Ave. branch until 1939, when her only daughter married. She died at 57 in 1942.

The decision that more than any other swung the Steinbergs toward business greatness was actually a desperate attempt to salvage the mistake made in 1933 of establishing a store at 2175 St. Catherine St. W.

The location was so narrow that the conventional type of grocery counter would have projected into the fruit section, leaving almost no space for customers. Following several unsuccessful experiments, Sam closed the store on the last day of January, 1934.

Over the week end he threw out all the sales counters except a small wrapping table near the exit. He changed the store's name to Steinberg's Wholesale Groceries, slashed all his prices by 10 per cent, and eliminated phone orders and credit.

On Monday morning, he opened Quebec's first self-service grocery store. Sales immediately shot up from $4,000 to $10,000 a month. The customers tried to lug away so much merchandise that the Steinbergs recruited a gang of neighborhood children with wagons to deliver for a nickel any purchase of $3 or more.

$3.3 Million Sales

The new selling method caught on so well that all the units were converted to self-service. By 1937, the family was operating 22 stores with a turnover of $3,365,491.

During the three years before the outbreak of the First World War the Steinbergs built nine small supermarkets. Canadian banks then considered them such poor risks that they would lend money for the ventures only if Sam agreed to build apartments above the stores. That way every mortgage could be at least partly protected in case the market failed.

Sam was by this time almost completely absorbed with policy matters, but he set aside his mornings to tour the chain and chat with customers. He would deliver their orders on his way to inspect the next outlet.

Bargains By Phone

His managers were instructed to prod sales by telephoning housewives with news of special bargains. Sam made price deals with wholesalers by having trucks call each morning at their warehouses, saving them transport costs and getting job-lot prices. Staple goods were arranged at the back of each store, so that to reach them customers had to pass the commodities bought on impulse.

The proportion of non-food merchandise increased so rapidly that by 1953 the company was selling 6,000 items, compared with 2,000 in 1937.

Food Comes First

The Steinbergs plan to introduce, among other things, banks of vending machines to line store fronts at night for selling basic foods, and an automatic check-out system that calculates a customer's bill by electronically scanning the prices marked on goods in brightly radioactive ink.

The Steinbergs, however, will remain primarily merchants of food.

"If a man goes without food for one day, he will lie," says brother Nathan. "If he goes without food for two days, he will steal. If he goes without food for four days, he will riot and kill. The food business is the most essential in the world, and the largest."

Slide Blocks PGE, Highway

(Compiled from CP)

HORSESHOE BAY—Truck-sized boulders thundered down onto the Squamish Highway and the Pacific Great Eastern Railway right-of-way near here Wednesday when a 100-foot section of cliff collapsed.

Officials estimated it would be late today before road and rail traffic can resume. The slide, 150 feet wide and 15 feet deep, is in the same area of one which delayed the PGE's inaugural train in 1956.

No one was injured in Wednesday's slide, but an unidentified loading-machine operator ran for his life as boulders hurtled towards his vehicle.

Clearing will start early today when workmen have dislodged loose rock still hanging above the rubble-choked section.

Five passengers from a south-bound train were brought here by water taxi. The train and crew returned to Squamish.

The PGE hopes to provide its regular schedules today by ferrying passengers between North Vancouver and Squamish.

Engineers said frost penetration probably caused the slide.

ROCKETEER WARNED
WEST VANCOUVER—Judge Alfred Watts warned a young rocket enthusiast to stay away from explosives after an experiment backfired. The 15-year-old boy's homemade rocket, explosives packed into an iron pipe, exploded and sprayed a fence with shrapnel. The boy was left off with a warning.

BRIDGE OPENED
DAWSON CREEK—The new $5,000,000 bridge across the Peace River at Taylor was opened Wednesday by the Canadian Army after nearly two years of construction.

The first two cars to cross the structure carried dignitaries from Dawson Creek and Fort St. John.

CONCILIATION ASKED
VANCOUVER—Business agent Max Pierotti of City Hall Employees' Association said a conciliation officer has been asked for help to settle a wage dispute with the city.

BOY CHARGED WITH ARSON

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—Two charges of arson and one of attempted arson have been laid against a 14-year-old boy here in connection with a $2,000 fire at St. Barnabas' Anglican Hall, a fire at the home of Fred H. White and an attempt to burn papers on the porch of another home.

The employees want a 9.2-per cent pay increase.

TRAFFIC DEATH

VANCOUVER (CP)—Antonio Pastro, 74, of Vancouver, became this city's third traffic victim of the year Wednesday when struck by a car as he crossed the street.

Police said Pastro, a retired longshoreman, was hurled 70 feet by the impact. Driver of the auto was not identified.

BOMBING PROBED

NELSON—Investigations into a bomb-blast at the RCMP headquarters here continued today after twisted fragments of a timing mechanism were found in the explosion area.

The mechanism was found late Wednesday by investigators using an outside blow-torch to melt two-feet deep snow around the building.

Police officials said the bombing follows the pattern of violence generally attributed to the radical Sons of Freedom Doukhobors, but no evidence was found directly linking the explosion with the sect. City police chief Robert Harshaw said: "I doubt if the bomb contained more than one stick of dynamite. It was probably just to let us know they (the Freedomites) are still around."

It was the first time a police building has been attacked during sporadic outbreaks of violence which have occurred in the Kootenays since 1924.

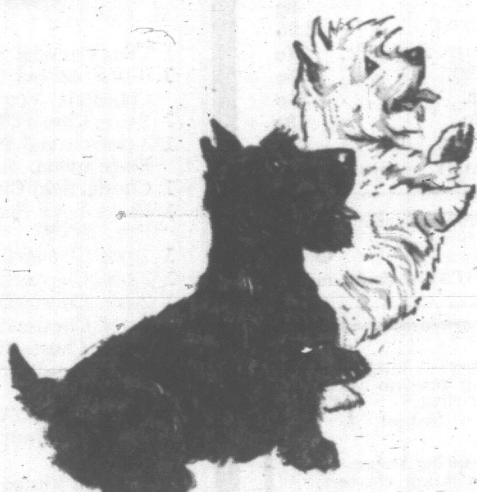

DRUNKS JAMMING JAIL AFTER APPEAL DECISION

VANCOUVER (CP)—Arrest of persons for alleged drunkenness here took a marked upswing Wednesday when 51 suspects appeared in police court, the highest total for a week night in the last seven months.

The higher arrest rate was attributed to the B.C. Court of Appeal acquittal Tuesday of Const. John Flaten on an assault charge.

The decline in such arrests began last June 8 when Const. Flaten was convicted in police court of assaulting one-armed Surrey millworker Gordon Recknagel.

Last June, police officials said the assault case decision made some officers feel they were taking a chance of getting into trouble by arresting drunks and should not do so unless absolutely necessary.

'I'll Probably Stay Here Till I'm 100'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

When 86-year-old Tom Uphill took his seat at the state opening of the B.C. Legislature this afternoon, he was entering his 40th consecutive year as independent Labor member for the distant coal-mining town of Fernie.

Tom Uphill as he looked 20 years ago.

Forty years in the same seat in the same House! The oldest and longest serving legislator in the history of British Columbia—and probably in the British Commonwealth.

The things he has seen! Conservatives throwing out Liberals. Liberals throwing out Conservatives. The birth of the CCF. The birth and death of the Coalition. The incredible rise of the Bennett Social Credit party which threw out both Liberals and Conservatives.

He has sat in the House with seven premiers—Liberals, John Oliver and Dr. J. D. MacLean; Conservative, Dr. Simon F. Tolmie; Liberal, Thomas D. Pattullo; Liberal-Coalitionists, John Hart and Byron Johnson, and now the Conservative turned Social Creditor, W. A. C. Bennett.

In his own puckish way Tom Uphill has got along with them all. When he first came to Victoria in 1920 he was soon on joking terms with the legendary "Honest John Oliver." And every premier since has had a laugh with him.

"I have a suspicion Premier Bennett regards me as an oddity," said Tom when I saw him in his one-man committee room at the Buildings (and being a one-man party he has to be a one-man committee).

"The others did, too, but then of course, I have funny ideas about them. It's all a matter of viewpoint."

Will he run in the next election?
"Why yes," said Tom. "I'm thinking of putting up in the Okanagan. It would be fun to run against Premier Bennett and the Speaker." (Hugh Shantz, SC-North Okanagan).

"You see I first put up for Vernon in 1916 and I didn't do so badly either. But the Fernie people needed me more."

Over the years Tom Uphill has somehow retained the round good-humored face and rich rolling voice his earliest associates remember. And somehow he looks younger than last year.

He has never posed as an intellectual, but no member of the house has a more colorful vocabulary. His speeches are always lively and his quaint habit of switching from a discussion on, say, pensions, to the quality of beer or women's fashions keeps everyone in good humor.

Tom is not over-fond of formality and seldom a session goes by without his running into trouble with Mr. Speaker. His apologies are masterpieces of contrition, but they never fool anyone.

One evening when the House was engaged in routine business, the member for Fernie wandered in, threaded his way up and down the aisles, looked anxiously up into the galleries and barked:

"Mr. Stranger! There are speakers in the gallery!"
(This was a quaint inversion of the ancient and half-forgotten privilege of a parliamentarian: "Mr. Speaker there are strangers in the gallery.")

The finer points of politics mean little to Tom Uphill. He regards himself as a spokesman for labor and he speaks in the voice of labor—bluntly and honestly, if saucily.

At the height of the war he declared:
"The dictators say democracy has failed. Democracy has not failed. It has never been tried."

In 1942 in a protest against the rationing of beer to coal miners, he waved an empty beer bottle in the House and cried: "If any of you here had been down a mine, you'd know what it is to be thirsty."

Between sessions he spends much time battling for the rights of his constituents, particularly as regards pensions, and he can drive a cagey bargain with committees and heads of departments.

When seeking favors in the House from a particular minister, he invariably refers to the minister as: "My very dear friend."

Tom says he received his education in the coal mines of England and Wales. He was born in England of English and Irish parents but is usually taken for an Irishman.

Before coming to Canada, he fought in the South

Dental Mechanic Trapped by Agent

Testimony of a private detective convicted a Victoria dental technician in city police court today of "bootlegging" a false denture last October.

W. E. Smith, whose laboratory is in the Stobart Building, 745 Yates, was found guilty of practicing dentistry, contrary to the Dentistry Act, in a charge pressed by the College of Dental Surgeons. He was fined $60.

"NOT DOCTOR"

Investigator Wolfgang Fitzner, of Vancouver, said he went to Smith's office and laboratory Oct. 15 where he met the accused and asked if he was Dr. Smith.

"No, not Dr. Smith; Mr. Smith," he quoted the accused. Fitzner said Smith's equipment included a turntable chair with headrest besides the regular dental laboratory furnishings.

He said Smith made impressions of his upper and lower jaws, told him the cost of a false plate would be between $20 and $30 and accepted a $5 deposit from Fitzner.

When Fitzner asked for a receipt, Smith told him he could not issue one because "it was illegal at the time for him to manufacture dental plates by direct contact with the patient, but the whole situation would be changed soon."

Four days later, Fitzner told the court, he went back to Smith's office and was fitted with an upper plate by the accused, who said he would have difficulty wearing it at first and to return if it gave too much trouble.

He said he paid Smith the "full price" of $28 and was given a business card saying "Smith Dental Laboratory."

Under cross-examination by J. N. McIlree for the defence, Fitzner told the court he had visited 10 dental technicians in the last six months in the course of his employment by the College of Dental Surgeons, and that 10 plates had been made all together.

HAD SAD STORY

Fitzner admitted he overcame reluctance of the various technicians to make him plates by telling them he lost an arm in a fire-cleaning plant and needed teeth to get employment.

Mr. McIlree said there was no evidence that the accused was not a member of the College of Dental Surgeons nor that he was not qualified to deal with a patient in the manufacture of plates, apart from the uncorroborated statement of one witness.

Magistrate William Ostler said the witness was reliable, related his story in "commendable detail" and was "unshaken by cross-examination." He had no reason to doubt the evidence, which made a strong prima facie case.

The defence called no evidence.

'Save Park' Fund Urged By Sportsmen

Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association today wrote Mayor Percy Scurrell offering to launch a "Save the Park Fund" for Thetis Lake Park.

The offer was the latest salvo in a mounting mail campaign from individuals and organizations opposing proposed sale of power line easement through the northeast corner of the park.

VFGPA president Cliff Bate said the organization had voted a donation of $100 to start a fund for development of Thetis Lake provided it is left in its present state.

OFFER MATCHED

"We would require two weeks to conduct the fund drive and are confident that with proper promotion we could more than match the ($5,200) now offered for the power line access," he wrote.

The association also commended the city "for the manner in which they have made land available for parks in the Greater Victoria area."

About a dozen letters opposing the power line easement have been received at City Hall, including requests for two delegations to address council Friday on the subject.

CITY LASHED WITH WINDS UP TO 55 MPH

A storm which gained strength today hit Victoria with winds which reached 55 miles per hour in gusts at 9 a.m.

Average speed was still between 30 and 40 miles per hour at noon, according to weatherman William Mackie. Winds will fall off gradually to an average of about 20 miles tonight and Friday.

'Goon Tactics' Spark Challenge by Dairy

Court Action Dared

Milky Way Dairy Ltd., charging the dairy branch with "goon tactics" and "intimidation," today dared the government to take it to court for supplying 60 Victoria retail stores with 64-ounce cartons of milk.

Henry Robinson, dairy manager, was incensed with actions of a government representative in the contentious milk issue.

"It's open war from now on until this thing is settled," Mr. Robinson said.

Threats have been made to some of the retailers supplied with the 64-ounce cartons. Mr. Robinson said, and today one of them refused to take the milk.

The company claims it was given permission by government officials to supply milk in the 64-ounce carton—actually two U.S. quarts, instead of 80-ounce cartons of two Imperial quarts—then when it was in business the Cabinet passed an order-in-council prohibiting supplying of milk in a carton of that size.

INTIMIDATION

Mr. Robinson now claims the government is afraid to take the dairy to court to test the order because it fears the order would not stand up.

"That is why we are subjected to this campaign of bluff and intimidation," he said. "If we are breaking the law, why don't they take us to court? If not, then why don't they leave us alone."

He said the present action started Tuesday when Peter Regehr, a dairy branch inspector, gave the dairy a verbal warning that the order-in-council would not be changed.

"He told me he would send me a registered letter on the matter, and when I said 'go ahead,' he qualified his remark and said he would try to have a letter sent."

THREAT TO STORES

"Then I heard that Mr. Regehr had visited retail stores and told the managers it was against the law to sell our milk. He said if they did sell the milk, charges would be laid against them."

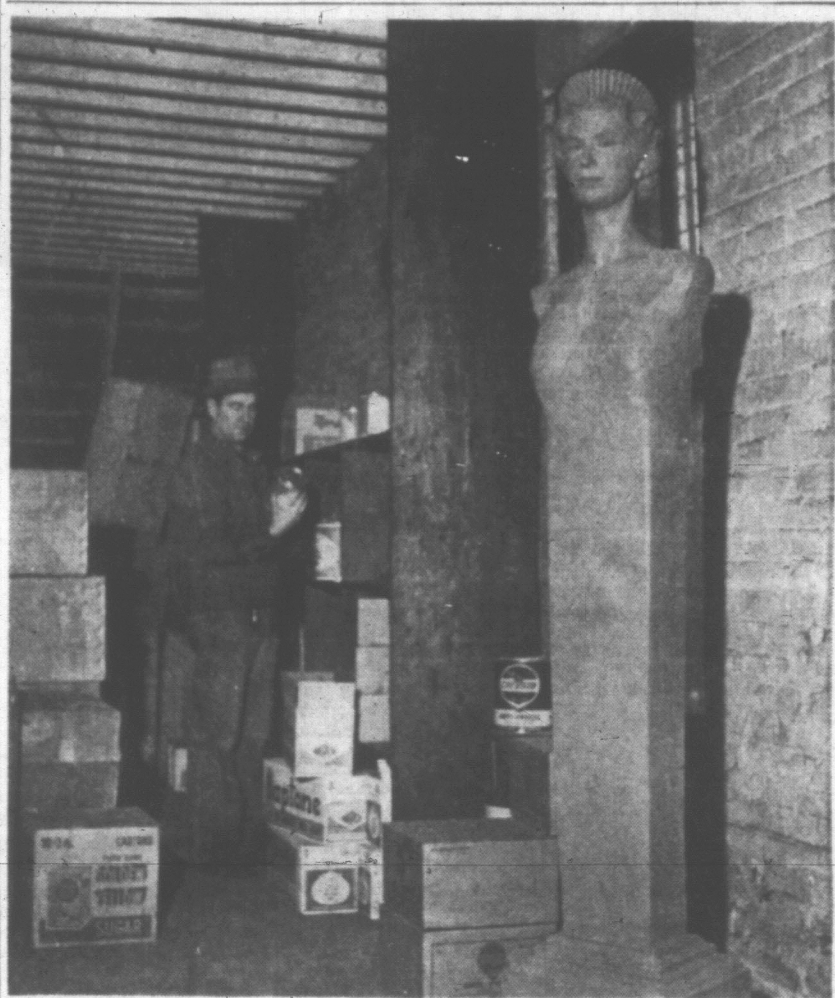

"The order-in-council only mentions the vendor—that's us. We told all the store managers that if there is a charge to be laid it should be laid against the dairy, with a judge deciding."

"This is a cowardly, low-down way of trying to put us out of business. We have no objection to the order being tested in court, but we do object to our customers being intimidated," Mr. Robinson said.

The dairy will continue to supply milk in the 64-ounce cartons to any customers who will take it, he said.

FRIDAY MEETINGS

Victoria Lions Club: Noon, Empress Hotel. Charlie Mullins will show his color film "Holiday in Hawaii."

COMMEMORATIVE BUST of Queen Elizabeth rests in drab surroundings of Garbally works yard storeroom today while waiting for preparation of Beacon Hill Park site. The concrete moulding by Peggy Walton Packard will serve as a reminder of the 1959 Royal Visit here when it is raised within the next week. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

NO LANDSCAPING FOR SITE

Erection of Queen's Bust Probable Within a Week

The long-awaited bust of Queen Elizabeth probably will be erected in Beacon Hill Park within a week.

City parks administrator W. H. Warren today said the life-size bust will be raised on a pedestal across the road from the Burns statue in the park.

Meanwhile, Ald. A. I. Curtis said he will make a motion

Friday in city council to provide payment for Peggy Walton Packard, the sculptress who did the moulded concrete work.

She sent an interim bill of $200 to council last week.

The statue, which was to have been ready for erection shortly after the Queen's visit here last July, touched off an argument in intermunicipal committee that dragged through the fall months.

It was commissioned as one of the projects undertaken by the joint civic royal tour committee, headed by Ald. Curtis.

But Esquimalt subsequently washed its hands of the project and later Oak Bay refused to share in the additional cost of landscaping a site for the statue which would have sent the original $350 estimate to $1,000.

BILL BROUGHT ACTION

The issue dropped out of sight after the stalemate until Mrs. Packard sent in her bill.

Mr. Warren said he was instructed to set up the bust on a pedestal, using $150 remaining in the royal tour fund, but to skip the landscaping.

He said the statue was taken from Mrs. Packard's studio and stored in the Garbally works yard a week ago, pending completion of siting work in Beacon Hill Park.

City engineer James Garnett said as soon as a carpenter is free for putting in the pedestal forms, the work will proceed.

"It should be done in a week," he added.

ASK The TIMES

Q. I would like to know if there is any way to preserve starfish so they look life-like. I want to use them to decorate a basement bar. E.H.

A. Put the starfish on a board and put a small nail through each tentacle, attaching them to the board. Put it in the sun to dry. Then paint with shellac. They'll last for ages.

Q. I have a piece of jewelry in the shape of a boat's head with the underlying words "Audentes Fortuna Juvat." What do they mean? M.M.

A. The Latin saying means "Fortune Assists the Daring."

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Three men showed their colors in city police court today.

Alfred White and Wilfred Black, no fixed address, pleaded not guilty to a joint charge that they used threats and violence to rob Gordon Brown, 527 Esquimalt, of $4 and an Indian sweater at Station Hotel, 501 Cormorant, Wednesday night.

Brown told police he was visiting at the hotel when the alleged robbery took place.

Black and White were remanded to next Thursday for trial.

Zephyr, the performing West Highland terrier, is resting quietly at his home today after being found unconscious in a ditch near Sidney.

His owner, Mrs. Hyacinthe Mellich of 4551 West Saanich Road, believes he leapt from a moving car after being stolen from a utility room behind her garage last Saturday afternoon.

He was found in the ditch Saturday night by Norman Langford of Shawnigan Lake who cared for him until his owner could be traced.

Of the 4,600 persons in downtown Victoria who have received free "doorstep" TB X-rays in the last two weeks, 150 have been called back for medical examinations.

In making the announcement, Dr. R. M. Lane, medical director, Vancouver Island Chest Centre, said "there are a definite number of our referrals who have a definite chest disease."

The survey is expected to be completed by Feb. 26.

City Hall's "inside" and "outside" staffs have outlined their wage demands for this year.

The 155-member "inside" staff sought a 14 per cent increase in contract requests made Wednesday afternoon. The 270-man "outside" staff is reportedly seeking a 7 per cent increase.

British and Foreign Bible Society work in India will be shown by colored film in First Baptist Church Monday next at 8 p.m.

It will be presented for the first time in B.C. by the society's provincial secretary, Rev. J. A. R. Tingley, Vancouver.

Additional voices are needed in all sections of the chorus for the Gilbert and Sullivan Operatic Society's forthcoming production of "Brigadoon," according to music director Derek McDermott.

Auditions for new members will therefore be held tonight at 8 at the Willis Travel Service, 1066 Douglas Street.

Rehearsals are held Mondays and Thursdays. Production dates are May 23, 24 and 25.

275,000 NOW ENROLLED

Fun Essential Says Chief Scout

Canada's deputy chief scout, Jackson Dodds, 79, of Montreal, asks each scout one question:

"Are you having fun?"
"If the scout isn't," said Mr. Dodds today, "there's something wrong, and I ask the scoutmaster how come."

But most scouts are having fun, more than 275,000 of them in Canada, up from 95,000 only 15 years ago.

Mr. Dodds, here for an executive meeting of the Boy Scout Association starting Friday, said 60 per cent of this country's 5,000 scout groups are church-sponsored.

And he hazarded a guess that since the movement started in 1907, at least 50,000 boys had passed through the scout movement throughout the world.

The former general manager of the Bank of Montreal has been associated with scouting 40 years.

"We don't expect all the boys to tie knots. If this was the case, I'd be out. We want them only to follow scout promises regarding God and the Queen, and to help their fellow men."

He revealed that the third Canadian jamboree would be held at Ottawa's Connaught Range in July, 1961, at a date to be announced later.

At least 3,000 scouts are expected to attend.

Mr. Dodds will be on Vancouver Island touring scout groups until Feb. 2.

"I'd like 15 cents worth, if it won't run me much over a dollar."

SHOPPING GUIDE

Bring Stock of Blankets Up With Help of This Sale

By PENNY SAVER

Sales of home linens and blankets at this time of year allow smart housewives to stock up on items which no family can be without. Well-known brand of blankets is now on sale at prices that mean real savings for the gal who shops early. Sateen-bound blankets, size 72 inches by 84 inches, that normally sell at $16.50 can now be bought at $13.20. Others being sold at $15.60 are usually priced at $19.50.

These are real-luxury blankets and, as the sale lasts only until the end of this week, I suggest you shop early!

If your kitchen is beginning to get you down why not dress it up a little by making some bright, new runners and cloths. I've seen yardage material in exciting color combinations that would lift anyone's spirits.

Material is 17 inches wide and strong Irish linen. One particularly attractive design has seagulls winging their way across colorful backgrounds. Color combinations are white and blue seagulls on backgrounds of either rose, gold or grey.

Material would also make attractive flouncies to edge that small kitchen window that's so hard to dress!

Normally selling at 98 cents a yard, you can buy it for 76 cents a yard this week.

Your dinner guests will compliment you on your choice of linen if you use some of the cloth and napkin sets I saw this week. These are of beautifully-woven Irish linen and color combinations have to be seen to be appreciated. They include rose and grey, gold and grey, green and grey and teal blue and grey. Each set has a large 32-inch-square cloth and four matching napkins. Price is $6.95. Choose set to match decor of your dining room and wait for the raves!

For information on any of these items phone Penny at EV 2-3131.

FRENCH ONION SOUP

Three medium-sized onions, 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 cans (approximately 10 oz. each) condensed consommé, 2 cups water, 6 rather thin slices French-stick bread, grated

Gruyere or other suitable cheese.

Peel and slice onions thinly. Heat butter or margarine in a saucepan; add sliced onions and fry over low heat, covered and stirring often, until onions are delicately golden. Blend in flour, consommé and water. Bring the soup to the boil, stirring often. Cover and simmer half an hour. Toast French bread and place 1 slice in each of 6 ovenproof serving dishes; sprinkle generously with cheese and then add the soup, distributing onions as you do. Sprinkle again with more of the cheese and place under the broiler until cheese melts.

Yield: Six servings.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

The world would be very drab without colors. If we never saw a beautiful sunset, or the thrilling and subtle hues of spring, or the flaming falls; if nature provided us with only the sameness of grey, how boring it would be!

The same thing is true of people and their coloring—both physical and emotional. I suppose the thing to dread is to be colorless in either way. Nature has taken care of that!

However, I sometimes think that women do not take full advantage of the magic of color in make-up, their clothes or the decor of their homes. Most women are aware of what make-up can do for them. I think they are more apt to fail in the colors they wear and, most of all, they do not realize what the colors they live with, in their homes, can do for them or how they may discourage them.

Most women spend a lot of time in their homes. The colors there are important. It is a well-accepted fact that the colors we live with have a real impact on us. This is now taken into consideration in the decoration of hospitals and psychiatric wards.

You can look vibrant or tired, sorrowful or lovely, feel happy or unhappy, depending on your make-up and the colors of the clothes you wear and the colors in your home.

I think many women fail to recognize the impact which the colors of the walls of their homes have on them. You respond to certain shades and others are irritating to you.

Dr. and Mrs. Edward George Bryant of Chemainus, B.C., announce the engagement of their only daughter, Susan Jean, to Gerald Thomas Cloke, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Cloke of Ladysmith, B.C. The wedding will take place at St. John's Anglican Church in Victoria on February 20 at 7 p.m., with Canon George Biddle officiating. Attendees will be Miss Linda Splatt and Miss Myrna Olmstead of Vancouver, and Mr. Kenneth Gray, Ladysmith. Both principals are descendants of British Columbia pioneers, the bride-elect's paternal grandfather being postmaster at Ladysmith for many years.

DEAR ABBY . . .

A Man's Best Friend . . .

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Please tell me if I am married to a crazy man or not. We are now living in Banff, Alta. My husband's Daddy called him from Calgary last night and told him that Bozo (my husband's dog) died, so my husband drove to Calgary to bury his dog.

Do dogs have funerals, Abby? Bozo was an old dog and my husband raised him from a pup. But in the six years we've been married my husband has lost several aunts and uncles and he never bothered to go to any of their funerals. What do you think of a man who will start out in the middle of the night to drive half-way across the province to bury a dog?

ONLY A WIFE.

DEAR WIFE: A man's devotion for his dog can't be measured in aunts and uncles. Your husband is dog-gone normal.

DEAR ABBY: Maybe I am being petty but I do want to get your point of view. What do you do about a woman who always grasps a man's hand (the one in which the match is held) while he lights her cigarette? Both parties are married, but not to each other. The man is my husband and this woman is a free-lance widow. I trust my husband but I don't trust her. I don't want to make a big thing out of this because I don't want to appear jealous. But how should I handle it?

ANNOYED.

DEAR ANNOYED: Simmer down before you get all burned up. The poor soul is probably trying to get a cheap thrill. Ignore the performance. You've got the bonfire and she's getting the sparks.

DEAR ABBY: I like a boy and he says he likes me, but listen to this: When I ask him to walk me home, he says he has to stay after school. But five minutes after I get home, I see him walking past my house. He says he has to do his homework. Then I see him standing around outside doing nothing. He is 14 and so am I. How can I win his love?

DEAR DEE DEE: He's shy, immature, bashful, timid, self-conscious and 14. There is only one cure for this. Wait until he's 15.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "BEING USED": Of course you are. Simply tell your friend that she can no longer "copy" your homework. You have not been "helping" her . . . you have been helping her cheat.

CONFIDENTIALLY YOURS

—by Byrne Hope Sanders

MONTREAL, Jan. 28th—How's your resolution casualty list? One reason New Year's resolutions fall by the wayside is that we sometimes aim too high. I discovered this last year when I resolved to end up '59 with money in the bank. It was a while before I caught on to saving what I could afford to save regularly at the BANK OF MONTREAL. Now I plan my savings like a day's shopping . . . try to make sure I can save comfortably, in easy stages so I won't give up half way through the year. The best plan is to have a B of M Personal Chequing Account for paying household bills. Keep it as your spending account separate from your Savings Account. Your local B of M manager will be glad to show you how a Personal Chequing Account works.

MOTHER, THEY'RE GOOD! . . . Yes, youngsters love wild-cherry flavoured Vita-Pops like candy . . . and new Wampole Vita-Pops are so good for them. They taste like candy yet they're really vitamins. You see, Vita-Pops contain precious vitamins A, C, D and B12, the vitamins so essential for sound growth and good health. That's why wise mothers agree that one of the smartest things you can do to safeguard your youngsters' good health is to give them Vita-Pops—just one a day for each child will do the trick. I recommend you buy a 3 weeks' supply of Vita-Pops at $2.50 . . . or a 15 weeks' supply at only $5.95.

SKATING, SKIING, SLEDDING . . . these are the 'Big Three' sports in winter time, and they all produce the same result—enormous appetites! Best way I know to satisfy an active, hungry family is to be generous with nutritious BLUE BONNET MARGARINE. Add a pat of it to all your sandwiches. Baking, too, is better when you use Blue Bonnet. That's because it's made from the finest ingredients . . . pure vegetable oils and pasteurized skim milk, with Vitamins A and D added. Get Blue Bonnet today—everything tastes better with Blue Bonnet on it!

ALWAYS HANDY ON MY KITCHEN SHELF . . . several of the bright, white tins of AYLMER FANCY PEAS—ASSORTED SIZES. Spring Hats and Dresses Vie With Color and Pomp of Opening

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Almost as much interest was shown in attractive ensembles worn by feminine guests at this afternoon's opening of the Legislature as in the traditional ceremony.

Those who arrived early found the time passed quickly as they compared notes on merits of jacket or sheath dresses; petal or feather hats and whether pearls were to be preferred to the more colorful modern jewelry.

Even the men were interested. Their eyes followed those women who dared to wear ultra-modern hats and gay spring colors. They nodded their approval or disapproval as they whispered to their next door neighbors.

One male guest said later: "It may have been bleak January outside but the ladies didn't stop to think about it. It was spring as far as they were concerned and they almost made us believe it."

No one was disappointed. With fashion decreeing that spring and summer will see a return to a more feminine silhouette guests at the opening were able to choose from a wide selection of colors and fabrics in the new softer styles.

MRS. ROSS

Mrs. Frank Mackenzie Ross set the motif in her choice of a model sheath dress in heavy cinnamon brown hand-made lace. Her bell crowned cloche was of brown chiffon covered with flat chiffon poppies in complimenting tones. Brown accessories, a Russian sable cape and pearls completed her ensemble.

Miss Ruth MacLean, who accompanied Mrs. Ross, was wearing a blue sheath dress with close-fitting floral hat in matching tones and fur cape.

Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, wife of the premier of the province, chose a fine black wool ensemble with contrasting white petal hat and blue mink stole.

In Mrs. Bennett's party was her two sons, W. R. Bennett and R. J. Bennett; her daughter, Mrs. G. H. Tozer and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. W. R. Bennett, all of Kelowna.

Mrs. Tozer wore a beige wool dress in Empire style with pink wool topcoat and pink cloche hat covered with flowers en tone. Mrs. W. R. Bennett chose a classically-styled black velvet dress with furs and a white petal hat.

Mrs. W. D. Black, wife of the provincial secretary, wore a silk print sheath style afternoon dress topped with a tiny matching jacket. Dress was in varied shades of blue and green. Her hat was of navy feathers. She completed ensemble with a mink stole.

DRESSMAKER SUIT

A regal blue dressmaker suit with grey mink collar was chosen by Mrs. Robert Bonner, wife of attorney-general. An off-the-face grey mink hat was worn; she had blue accessories. Her jewelry was pearls.

Mrs. R. G. Williston, whose husband is minister of lands and forests, wore a brown silk sheath dress with matching jacket. Her turban hat in beige tone was edged with pink flowers. Beige accessories completed the picture.

Light forest green was color of Blin and Blin sheath dress worn by agriculture minister's wife, Mrs. N. P. Steacy. A satin cummerbund highlighted the waistline and bodice was trimmed with bead work, en tone. Her close fitting hat in contrasting green net had velvet leaves and cherries. Accessories were green and she wore a mink stole.

Mrs. W. K. Kiernan, wife of mines minister, was wearing a powder blue lace sheath style afternoon dress. A large velvet navy hat encircled at the crown with white flowers highlighted the ensemble which was worn with a sapphire mink stole.

Black wool crepe sheath dress was worn by Mrs. Lyle Wicks, labor minister's wife. Her hat was in ice white.

THE SHEATH

Pearls were worn with wool dress in platinum beige wool chosen by Mrs. L. R. Peterson, wife of minister of education. Her turban hat was en tone.

Mrs. E. C. F. Martin, wife of health and welfare minister, wore a Blin and Blin avocado green suit. It featured a bloused jacket and collar was trimmed with mink. Her accessories were en tone.

A semi-fitted jacket topped the slim straight skirt of suit worn by Mrs. W. N. Chant, public works minister's wife. In Elizabeth blue wool, suit was matched with accessories en tone and a mink stole. Her hat of white feathers, was trimmed with blue posies. Jewelry was amethysts.

Grey and white silk styled draped afternoon dress worn by Mrs. E. C. Westwood, wife of recreation minister. Her hat was a new spring model in white straw.

Mrs. Buda Brown MLA for Vancouver-Point Grey, made an attractive picture on the floor of the House in her afternoon dress of white silk ribbon highlighted with pearl jewelry. A fashionable pill box hat in raspberry and pink tones was worn and she completed the ensemble with a raspberry red coat.

A navy blue two-piece ensemble was worn by Mrs. Lois Haggen, CCF MLA for Grand Forks-Greenwood. Her rose-toned spring chapeau was of delicate petals and she had navy accessories. Her jewelry was pearls.

CLASSIC BLACK

Mrs. L. H. Shantz, wife of Speaker of the House, wore a red wool suit dress with black broad-brimmed satin hat. Accessories were also black.

Mrs. J. R. Lemieux, wore a silk suit in grey. Her hat of black feathers matched her accessories.

Mrs. R. X. Richter, wore a rose-toned dressmaker suit, and small black hat in new spring close-fitting style. Her muskrat jacket and pearl jewelry completed outfit.

Mrs. R. W. Mayhew, wife of former Ambassador of Canada in Japan, wore a black satin afternoon dress. Her small off-the-face hat was in shell pink tone and she wore a mink stole.

Mrs. H. S. Rayner was charming in a royal blue broad-clothed sheath dress with matching jacket. Her accessories were in black. Hat was en tone.

FLORAL HATS

Wife of mayor of Vancouver, Mrs. Thomas Alsbury, wore a navy blue silk dress. A frothy white straw hat trimmed with crisp net and highlighted by a single rose completed the spring ensemble. Her accessories were in navy tone.

Mrs. Percy B. Scurrah, wife of Mayor of Victoria, wore a gown in Dior blue peau de soie, enhanced by a bodice in French lace. Her imported cloche was covered with dainty roses in white satin. She carried a French beaded handbag. A mink stole completed outfit.

Mrs. Stuart Keate chose a black faille suit dress. Large violets in two shades covered her tiny elfin-shaped chapeau. She wore pearls, white gloves and a mink stole.

Mrs. George Gregory, wife of MLA for Victoria, wore a blue wool dress. Her hat was of white organza petals. Imported black and brown muted tone wool suit was worn by Mrs. W. A. Pendray.

Her hat was en tone featuring a crown of brown feathers. Her accessories were black patent leather.

With their husbands on the floor of the House this afternoon were Mrs. Tom Alsbury, left, and Mrs. Percy B. Scurrah, wives of the Mayors of Vancouver and Victoria respectively. They are pictured at a YWCA bridge and tea in this city Wednesday afternoon, where Mrs. Scurrah assisted in pouring tea. (Souvenir photos.)

Dinner Party

Dr. D. J. Elder and Mrs. Elder entertained at dinner last Sunday, at their home on Lorne Terrace. Guests were chiropractors and their wives, here to make arrangements for an alumni convention to be held in Nanaimo on April 30. Guests included Dr. M.

YWCA Bridge Tea Realizes $612

Sixty tables of bridge were in play at the YWCA bridge tea Wednesday afternoon and as many more guests arrived at the tea hour to make the event one of the most successful in recent years.

Bridge was played and refreshment served in the evening to bring proceeds for the day to $612.

Money will be used for world refugee work of the YWCA.

Receiving the many guests were Mrs. F. Bliss, president of the YWCA board; Mrs. Phyllis Graveley, executive director and Mrs. Donald M. Cox, convener of the affair.

Afternoon tea was served from a table covered with a lace cloth and centred with an arrangement of pink tulips and heather flanked by lighted pink candles in silver holders. Presiding at the silver tea services were Mrs. Percy B. Scurrah, Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, Mrs. F. A. Lindsay, Mrs. F. McGregor, Mrs. J. D. Hunter and Mrs. B. S. Heisterman.

Seven college girls, dressed in national costumes of Austria, India and China, assisted as serviteurs. They were Diana Lawrence, Diana Livesay, Louisa McKay, Wendy Etheridge, Georgia McLean, Heather Morgan and Beryl Hall.

Adding interest to the affair was a display of dressed dolls from countries depicting world service and refugee work. They were loaned by Mrs. Katherine Costain.

Tea convener was Mrs. T. A. Walker; home-cooking stall, Mrs. Stuart Morgan; candy, Mrs. R. Willis; publicity, Mrs. H. N. Cliff; tickets, Mrs. A. H. Sheard, Mrs. L. A. Gordon and Mrs. J. B. McLean; decorations, Mrs. R. E. Foster.

Bridge winners were drawn by Mrs. Bliss and announced by Mrs. Cox. In the afternoon they were Mrs. Gerald Stelek, Mrs. J. H. Alexander, Mrs. George Thornbury, Mrs. V. Hamilton, Mrs. W. Hughes and Mrs. J. H. Dalgleish; evening, Mrs. E. Hyndman, Mrs. K. Solly, Mrs. A. Glenday and Mrs. E. Thomas.

8 CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our sincere thanks for the many letters and cards of sympathy and beautiful flowers during our recent and severe illness in the loss of our mother and brother Charles, who passed away on January 25, 1950. We are grateful to the kind friends who helped at the cemetery where dear mother passed away. Funeral services were held in the Santa Mortuary Limited, 1001-1003 Douglas Street, on Monday, February 1, 1950, at 3 p.m. Interment in Colwood Rural Park.

9 IN MEMORIAM

DALL—William L. passed away January 25, 1950. Deep in our hearts you are fondly remembered. Sweet, happy memories cling around your name. True hearts that loved you with deep affection. Always will love you in death just the same. Ever remembered by wife and family.

ELLISON—Paul Lindal, beloved husband of Irene, who passed away suddenly Jan. 25, 1950. Offspring a lovely heart, special place in the hearts of his family. Always remembered by his loving wife, Irene.

GROUNTE—In loving memory of Edgar, who passed away Jan. 25, 1950. I long for household voices, who for vanished smiles I long. God hath laid my dear one on. And he can do no wrong. Ever remembered by his loving wife and family.

RIXSON—In memory of a loving mother and mother-in-law, who passed away January 25, 1950, at Victoria. Loving remembrance outlasts all. And though the years be many or few, They are filled with remembrance dear of you. Ever remembered by her loving husband and family.

PLYWOODS

Western RED CEDAR Bevel SIDING

"Keystone" clear kiln dried siding is the finest available—a quality material for all applications where perfection is required.

With its "grow-in" workability, weather resistance and lasting good looks, "Keystone" clear Western Red Cedar Siding has long been recognized as the standard of quality home construction.

It has a distinctive "shadow line" which enhances any architectural style in any setting, and is used to create a variety of interesting decorative effects on indoor surfaces as well as exterior.

5 GRADES

"CLEAR" Bevel SIDING

Siding of this grade is designed for use where perfection is demanded. It is well milled on four sides making a smooth surface, usable full length without waste of 1" and 2" wide or more from thick edge.

"A" Bevel SIDING

Siding of this grade is selected for use where exceptionally fine appearance is desired. It is usable full length without waste of 1" and 2" wide or more from thick edge.

"B" Bevel SIDING

Appearance closely approaching that of the higher grades is often achieved with siding of this grade which contains slightly more "material" and some cutouts in longer pieces. Craftsmen of fine moderate skill find it easy to apply. It may be mixed grain (MG).

"RUSTIC" Bevel SIDING

Siding of this grade is recommended for use on adobe coverings where the distinctive charm of rustic appearance is desired. Pieces are graded from the reason or rough side which is exposed. Thick edge may be rough or surfaced.

"C" Bevel SIDING

Pieces of this grade have one or more characteristics which are such size or number that the piece is not of a higher grade. Lengths are random with no specified percentages.

5 SIZES

3/4" x 8"
3/4" x 10"
3/4" x 12"

Terrace Power Line
Approved by Cabinet

B.C. Power Commission will start clearing immediately for a June start of construction on a $1,400,000 transmission line to carry Kitimat power to Terrace in northwestern B.C. The project was authorized by the B.C. cabinet Wednesday. The public-hydro authority has completed negotiations with Aluminum Company of Canada for supply of power over the 42-mile line. Terrace is now powered by BCPD diesel generation. A plan to extend the line in the future to Smithers and Hazelton, also now served by BCPD diesel units, is being studied.

LABOR 'RECHARGER' FOR HEART

Continued from Page 1 Canadian industries and workers could be hit, the congress said that the program it suggested would involve retraining of some workers, pensioning of others, introduction of new industries in some cases and movement of workers in others. On the subject of international trade, the congress took exception to any suggestion that high wages are pricing Canadian goods out of world markets. Canadian labor costs, in relation to production, were below those of Canada's chief competitors. The brief also attacked proposals for new restrictions on strikes and picketing and suggestions that unions should be made more easily subject to civil court action. Taking up international relations, the CLC urged the government to pursue disarmament, with a ban on the testing of nuclear weapons as a first step. Defence and disarmament must go hand-in-hand. On broadcasting, the brief expressed fear that the CBC's showing signs of becoming too commercial.

Spears Plane Wreck Found?

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The U.S. Navy said two vessels searching the floor of the Gulf of Mexico for the wreckage of an airliner that crashed last November reported yesterday they had established sonar contact with debris. Robert Spears, a Texas naturopath with a criminal record, had been believed to be aboard the plane which crashed Nov. 16 with the loss of 12 lives. Later it was discovered that Spears, who carried $100,000 in insurance, was alive. He is under arrest.

Lions Shuffle Directors' Slate

GANGES—Salt Spring Island Lions Club made a change in its board of directors this week because of the resignation of Colin F. Mount from his two-year term on the board. The one-year term of Harold Hoffman was extended to two years, and Fred Luddington was elected to the board for a one-year term. Mr. Mount has left the island to make his home near Seattle.

COMMONS SKIRMISH OVER EDEN MEMOIRS
Whose Tongue in Cheek?

OTTAWA (UPI)—Liberal members of parliament jumped on former British prime minister Anthony Eden's memoirs Wednesday as a defence of Canadian action during the 1956 Suez crisis. They failed, however, to draw Prime Minister Diefenbaker, a violent critic of the then Liberal government's stand, into a comment on Eden's statements.

COSTUME CONCERT

'Brahms' Hosts Charming Soiree

By JOAN MASON HURLEY Wednesday evening musical ly-minded Victorians had an opportunity to step back through time and spend an evening with famous musicians of the past. This charming and unique way to give a concert was presented at Oak Bay Junior High School by the Musical Art Society as "A Soiree in the Time and Manner of Johannes Brahms." The 19th century drawing room and authentic furniture and costumes realistically combined to take one to the year 1869. Director was Audrey St. Denys Johnson and the script was by Thelma Johns. It was most instructive and amusing, covering as it did the contemporary reaction to the "new" composers Wagner and Verdi, and relating anecdotes of concerts of those times, all accurate and genuine. Between conversation, Brahms' friends at the soiree entertained each other, and the audience, with songs or played instruments. STAR TURN The outstanding musical performance of the evening was the duet Barigi O Cara from La Traviata sung by Anne Harris and Michael Rog.

Belgian Congo 'Free' June 30

BRUSSELS (Reuters)—The Belgian Congo, recently disturbed, white-ruled home of 13,000,000 Africans, will become independent June 30. Belgian government officials and nationalist Congolese leaders announced the date Wednesday at a conference on the future of the 90,000-square-mile African territory. As victory for "freedom" African demands was disclosed, a new worry arose. Powerful Negro leader Joseph Kasavubu, often hailed as "King" by the Bakongo tribesmen of Leopoldville province, was believed to be speeding toward Paris on his way to Brazzaville, French-equatorial Africa.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Miss Tina Louise zoomed home from Rome and is back beautifying our streets—but she misses those European wolves and their charming lies.

"You didn't believe what those men told you, did you?" we asked Tina, just back from three months of European picture-making, after a fling in Hollywood.

"I don't believe what any men tell me!" Tina looked over a teacup at us in Lindy's. "But the American men don't lie, nicely. You get used to the Italian men calling you 'Treasure' and 'My love'—and with the guitar-playing to boot!"

Tina—whose figure got famous in "L'il Abner" and "God's Little Acre"—filmed "The Siege of Syracuse" with Rossano Brazzi, who plays Archimedes.

"In it, I swim in the nude," she announced.

"You do? You, a New York, Miami, Connecticut girl!" we exclaimed.

"Brazzi and the director thought I should."

"But you really did?" We couldn't believe it.

"No, I didn't," she said, suddenly.

"Now wait a minute!"

"You see some bare legs, bare arms and bare shoulders—but I had a double who went into the water," she said. "I can't lie to you."

You can't imagine how relieved we were after that.

Tina's going back soon to join that American group that includes Ava Gardner, Van Heflin, Anita Ekberg, Brazilian playboy Baby Pignatari and the others. "I will miss the charming lies and the flowers and the plants," she repeated. "It is wonderful to be lied to by somebody who fills your house with flowers. That is passe here in America. The flowers, not the lies."

HALF A DOZEN BIRTHDAYS were celebrated by little Elsie Smith of Gardena, Calif., the other day when six puppies born a year ago in her home returned for a reunion. They had been given away to friends in the neighborhood. Elsie seems carried away as the pups head for their birthday cake with hectic results. (NEA photo.)

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe. Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Clyde Roettger, aged 9, of Richmond, Va., for his question:

How Did Coal Get Into the Earth?

A coal fire burns to ashes, eats. A few sluggish salamanders wallowed in the muddy earth many millions of years to make that black shiny coal. The recipe was started perhaps 250 million years ago. If we could go back to those faraway days we would hardly recognize our beautiful world.

There were no birds soaring in the sky and only a few four-footed animals crawling on the ground. There were no flowers and no trees we could recognize except a few giant ferns.

The ancient seas washed over great areas of our continent several times and retreated. The centre of the continent and much of the west was swamp land, though the sea water which flooded it was not so salty as it is today. The oceans and the swampy marshes teemed with fish and other sea dwellers—all living in fear of hordes of huge hungry sharks.

The weather was warm and wet and all sorts of strange plants thrived in the swampy sea marshes. There were giant horse tails as tall as our birch trees. There were huge fern trees with giant fronds. There were plenty of insects. Giant dragonflies with wings four feet wide zoomed through the scrawny branches of the forest. The strange trees lived and died, falling into the muddy marshes. There they could not decay because the water was still and stagnant. Stagnant water contains no oxygen and the bacteria which cause plants to decay cannot live without oxygen. Masses of old trees and leaves piled up in the shallow seas.

As time went on the face of the earth changed. Mountains grew up from the muddy marshes and the waters washed back to the oceans. After millions of years, the weather wore down the new mountain tops and piled up new layers of dirt and soil. The old forest became buried under layers of rock. The heat and weight of these upper layers caused the buried forest to turn into coal. The process was very slow.

The moisture and many of the gases were squeezed out. Only the carbon was saved, and it is carbon which makes coal burn as a good fuel. After countless ages, the old forest became a bed of rather soft brown lignite. Lignite is a coal, but not too good as a fuel. This is because it is only about 67 per cent carbon.

ARMY IN DOUBT

Top Leaders Move Out Of Algiers

ALGIERS (UPI) — President Charles de Gaulle's highest representatives pulled out of Algiers tonight, leaving the city to insurgent French settlers and raising fears for the loyalty of the army commanders in Algeria.

(In Paris, an official source later said the move was made so the government representatives could "act without pressure.")

Delegate-general Paul Delouvrier and Gen. Maurice Challe, supreme military commander in Algeria, announced their withdrawal from the city to a hinterland command post in pre-recorded broadcasts over Algiers Radio.

The two men already had departed to the undisclosed headquarters when the broadcasts were made.

The French News Agency in Paris said more than an hour after the Delouvrier statement that "It was on the government's orders that M. Delouvrier and Gen. Challe left Algiers."

This resulted in speculation that the government was assuming responsibility for the move after the fact, in order to convince people that it was entirely in control of the situation.

'France Will Not Yield—I Will Not'

Delouvrier said in his address that de Gaulle told him "France will not yield. I will not yield."

He also said de Gaulle would be issuing orders to the army "shortly."

On the face of it, it looked as if the move to the hinterland command post was a tactical move by de Gaulle, in order to plan possible military action against the Algiers insurgents who oppose his self-determination policy for Algeria.

But Delouvrier said to the army in Algiers:

"I say to the army: This is a torment for you, but it is also an order. Close your ranks behind General Challe. Close them behind Gen. de Gaulle. The Moslems are behind him."

Then, addressing himself to the insurgents, he said:

"I am taking the risk of unleashing a civil war in order to avoid secession of Algeria from France, and de Gaulle's departure. I have taken the risk because I have confidence in you, because I know that the barricades are going to fall."

"Go on, tear them down with shouts of vive de Gaulle. Follow me, I beg you."

'You're Fighting for French Algeria'

Challe's speech made it appear that the army had, in effect, gone over to the insurgent cause.

"You are the army of France," Challe told the troops. "You are the guarantors of French presence in Algeria. You are fighting so that Algeria shall remain French."

"You cannot morally be an army of secession, because that would mean the loss of Algeria—and probably the loss of France."

Delouvrier called on the Moslems of Algiers to demonstrate for de Gaulle and for the Algerian solution: the French president has proposed. Earlier today, the Moslems had made a farce of insurgent attempts to get them to demonstrate against de Gaulle and his policy.

"I am giving the order to all civil and military authorities to carry out this plan of salvation with all the means at their disposal and, with all their soul," Delouvrier said. Then he called the roll of the local commanders and turned the decision for peace or civil war over to them.

The main groups of colonists are holding out behind barricades here in Algiers, and have recruited support from other settlers throughout Algeria.

A war veterans' parade seeking to establish a common front with the Moslem population of Algiers failed this morning.

But, while things were generally quiet, the possibility of graver trouble remained—even the possibility of Algeria seceding from France. Officials have remained alert to maintain order and, in an apparent effort to ease tension, lifted censorship this morning. A general strike here also eased off today.

The army thus far has been reported sympathetic to the settlers, but has maintained a strict hands-off policy in their fight with de Gaulle.

The insurgents have made no move since Sunday to extend their power beyond their two barricaded strongholds on the main street of Algiers.

ROSS IN FAREWELL CEREMONY

Sickness, Rain Dull 'Opening'

Outside bleak weather dampened the ceremonials at the opening of the B.C. Legislature's session this afternoon.

Inside, the absence of Premier Bennett, in hospital, subdued the proceedings.

All the customary procedures marking the historic rights of democracy were carried out, along with the pomp of artillery salutes, a sharp honor guard of the famed Princess Pats and the music of a naval band.

Lieut.-Governor Frank Ross, opening his fifth and last session before retiring from office, arrived in his state uniform from government house at 2:45 p.m. and the roll of the artillery across the Causeway was the signal for the show to begin.

CHAMBER CROWDED

The chamber inside, as customary was crammed with officials of all ranks, and visitors from many parts of the province, with their ladies, to witness the ceremonies. Only 49 of the 52 elected members were in their seats, however, as both Archie Gibbs, Oak Bay Liberal, and Tom Bate, Point Grey Social Credit, are on the sick list with Mr. Bennett. After the formalities the dignitaries and guests were prepared to attend the government reception in the Empress Hotel, and some of them later the first state ball in the new government house.

17,000 Strike In Shipyards

NEW YORK (AP)—More than 17,000 shipbuilders' union members were on strike today against the Bethlehem Steel Company's plants on the United States eastern seaboard.

Eight shipyards and a nuclear research centre are affected.

Three are in New York, the others at Sparrows Point, Md., Baltimore and Boston.

GOSPORT, Eng. (Reuters)—Admiral of the Fleet Sir Arthur John Power, one of Britain's leading naval commanders in the Second World War, died today at 70.

Few Surprises As Government Outlines Plans

By PETE LOUDON
Times Legislative Reporter

Substantial boost in payments to welfare cases and pensioners and additional aid to school districts were two of the main points in the speech from the Throne to the B.C. legislature today.

There were no major surprises or policy changes indicated in the government forecast — one of the longest on record — which was delivered by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross. A large part of the address reviewed what the government has done in the past year.

But its tone strengthened speculation that an election is near.

Many of the benefits proposed will not be fully detailed until the presentation of Premier Bennett's budget on or about Feb. 12.

This holds true for the two prime items — welfare and school grant increases.

"As further evidence of my government's concern for the welfare of the needy, of old age pensioners, of the blind, disabled and handicapped, and of those receiving social allowance, you will be asked to approve substantial increases in the present supplementary allowance and basic social allowance," the speech said.

It also said, "Your approval will be sought of increased grants to school districts, as well as to the University of British Columbia and to Victoria College."

Help for School Financing

The speech did not clarify whether this would indicate a change in the formula to increase the provincial share of school costs, or whether it indicated more would be spent on schools by the province — which might ordinarily be expected through the demands of increased enrolments.

The Throne Speech was more specific in promising aid to school districts where construction programs have been slowed because of difficulty in marketing bond issues.

The government has itself purchased $9,000,000 of the last $12,000,000 in bonds issued by B.C. school districts, and "negotiations are now proceeding toward the direct purchase by the government of further school board securities in the amount of about $8,000,000."

Further in the field of education benefits, the throne speech said an increase will be proposed in funds available for matriculation and university honor student scholarships, bursaries and loans to students requiring assistance with tuition.

Under legislation brought down last year, the province pays 50 per cent of the tuition of top students, and 33 1/2 per cent for the first 1,000 with second class honors. A $2,000,000 student loan fund was set up.

Election Speculation Mounts

Additional "incentive and assistance" is proposed for superior teachers to enable them to take postgraduate courses "while special recognition will be accorded to other outstanding teachers for meritorious service."

The throne speech contained no hints of tax increases or of legislation to affect labor-management negotiations, or other contentious issues, lending strength to the earlier speculation. This will be a pre-election session.

Civil servants were praised and told the government will extend further benefits to them. Voluntary training courses will be continued and a fourth executive development training course will be started. There was no direct reference to salary increases.

At the same time, the speech gave no indication the government will make public the Carrothers report which was filed a year ago after an investigation into the question of extending bargaining rights to the B.C. Government Employees' Association.

On the other hand, mention was made of the reports of three commissions of enquiry to be tabled this session — the Shrum report on power matters, Judge A. E. Lord's investigation of Doukhobor land problems, and the report of Judge J. C. Morrow's farm application. All were made public earlier.

Nursing Survey, Chronic Care

The government will make a province-wide survey of nursing home needs and will implement a program to assist construction of publicly-operated, non-profit institutions. Further assistance will be offered in the construction of elderly persons' housing developments.

As anticipated, the speech noted "that during the current year my government proposes to undertake an active chronic care program as an extension of the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service."

Outlined earlier, the plan would extend BCHIS coverage to persons requiring extended rehabilitation and convalescence, but likely would not cover the elderly infirm who would not improve under extended treatment.

There will be a broadening of the government's Salk anti-polio vaccine program "to offer the opportunity for immunization to every person in the province." There will be improved services for the handicapped. There will be legislation to "encourage, stimulate and promote recreation, sports and physical fitness programs," indicating a revival of the former "Pro-

Throne Speech Highlights

Major points in the throne speech at the opening of the B.C. Legislature today were:

- More money for old age and blind pensioners.
- More money for social assistance cases and other handicapped people drawing government allowances.
- Increased grants for school districts.
- Government to aid school building by buying school district bonds itself.
- Long-proposed program for care of chronics under hospital insurance to go ahead this year.
- Salk shots against polio to be offered to everyone in the province.
- House committee to study trading stamps and similar promotion devices.
- Government employees to get "further benefits" (wage increases not specified).
- Some assistance coming for certain retired civil servants.
- British Columbia to have an official flag.
- B.C. Power Commission to issue "parity bonds" like the PGE Railway.
- New program to encourage recreation and physical fitness.
- Public works to go ahead at increased pace.
- No hints of any increases in taxes or any reductions.
- Province-wide superannuation plan for hospital workers.
- Expansions proposed in government services covering such things as probation, scholarships for senior matric and university students, public library services, teacher training, alcoholism and narcotics addiction control, housing for aged, and nursing home facilities.

Relax Money Curbs---Labor

OTTAWA (CP) — Relaxation of "tight money" to aid Canada's economy and boost employment was urged on the government today by the Canadian Labor Congress.

The 1,100,000 CLC in its annual legislative submission also urged a freer trade policy and expansion of Canada's social security program.

The 13,000-word submission was presented to Prime Minister Diefenbaker and ministers by a delegation led by CLC President Claude Jodoin.

Dealing with the general economic situation, the congress said it is recognized as being better than a year ago but declared that there seems little prospect that 1960 unemployment will be appreciably less than last year.

TIME TO EASE OFF

Noting that the government had run a large deficit partly to lift the country out of the recession, the congress said that it is not suggesting a succession of these but added: "We do suggest the time has come to relax the present tight money policy."

"We are not afraid that an increase in the money supply will lead to inflation, as long as we have, as we unquestionably have now, considerable unused resources of plant equipment and manpower."

Discussing international trade, the brief renewed a proposal for establishment of a Canadian export-import bank to help Canadian exports compete with those of the United States.

URGE FREEER TRADE

Every consideration of self-interest should impel Canada to pursue a policy of freer multilateral trade. And increased trade with underdeveloped countries could lessen the danger of a swing to communism.

Expressing realization that

City Drug Addiction Problem Increases

Victoria can't compete with Vancouver as a narcotics centre but it's growing.

Police Chief John Blackstock today told city police commission that there is a drug addiction problem here.

Asked by Mayor Percy Scourrah if it was increasing, the chief said:

"Yes, it is growing a bit. We are working very closely with the RCMP on it. It will all come out in the department's annual report next month."

Snow Adds to Britain's Woes

LONDON (Reuters) — Snow returned to England and Wales today to add to the hazards of fog and floods. Snow falling in Wales, western and northern England blocked many roads and created traffic chaos.

Mothers Barricade Street for Tots

TORONTO (CP) — A human barricade of mothers, many of them carrying small children, periodically held up traffic on Victoria Avenue in suburban Scarborough today to allow school children to cross the street. The mothers decided to form the barricade Wednesday night after the Scarborough public safety committee refused to recommend a school guard for the children.

3-Train Crash Snarls London Traffic

LONDON (Reuters) — Three trains were involved in a collision near London Bridge station today but first reports said no one was killed. Railroad spokesmen said there were some "minor casualties."

The crash occurred just before the evening rush hour and delayed tens of thousands of homebound commuters.

ARMY IN DOUBT

Top Leaders
Move Out
Of Algiers

ALGIERS (UPI) — President Charles de Gaulle's highest representatives pulled out of Algiers tonight, leaving the city to insurgent French settlers and raising fears for the loyalty of the army commanders in Algeria.

(In Paris, an official source later said the move was made so the government representatives could "act without pressure.")

Delegate-general Paul Delouvrier and Gen. Maurice Challe, supreme military commander in Algeria, announced their withdrawal from the city to a hinterland command post in pre-recorded broadcasts over Algiers Radio.

The two men already had departed to the undisclosed headquarters when the broadcasts were made.

The French News Agency in Paris said more than an hour after the Delouvrier statement that "It was on the government's orders that M. Delouvrier and Gen. Challe left Algiers."

This resulted in speculation that the government was assuming responsibility for the move after the fact, in order to convince people that it was entirely in control of the situation.

'France Will Not Yield—I Will Not'

Delouvrier said in his address that de Gaulle told him "France will not yield. I will not yield."

He also said de Gaulle would be issuing orders to the army "shortly."

On the face of it, it looked as if the move to the hinterland command post was a tactical move by de Gaulle, in order to plan possible military action against the Algerians who oppose his self-determination policy for Algeria.

But Delouvrier said to the army in Algiers:

"I say to the army: This is

'You're Fighting for French Algeria'

Challe's speech made it appear that the army had, in effect, gone over to the insurgent cause.

"You are the army of France," Challe told the troops. "You are the guarantors of French presence in Algeria. You are fighting so that Algeria shall remain French."

"You cannot morally be an a torment for you, but it is also an order. Close your ranks behind General Challe. Close them behind Gen. de Gaulle. The Moslems are behind him."

Then, addressing himself to the insurgents, he said:

"I am taking the risk of unleashing a civil war in order to avoid secession (of Algeria from France), and De Gaulle's departure. I have taken the risk because I have confidence in you, because I know that the barricades are going to fall."

"Go on, tear them down with shouts of vive De Gaulle. Follow me, I beg you."

army of secession, because that would mean the loss of Algeria—and probably the loss of France."

Delouvrier called on the Moslems of Algiers to demonstrate for de Gaulle and for the Algerian solution the French president has proposed.

Earlier today, the Moslems

Throne Speech
Highlights

Major points in the throne speech at the opening of the B.C. Legislature today were:

- More money for old age and blind pensioners.
- More money for social assistance cases and other handicapped people drawing government allowances.
- Increased grants for school districts.
- Government to aid school building by buying school district bonds itself.
- Long-proposed program for care of chronics under hospital insurance to go ahead this year.
- Salk shots against polio to be offered to everyone in the province.
- House committee to study trading stamps and similar promotion devices.
- Government employees to get "further benefits" (wage increases not specified).
- Some assistance coming for certain retired civil servants.
- British Columbia to have an official flag.
- B.C. Power Commission to issue "parity bonds" like the PGE Railway.
- New program to encourage recreation and physical fitness.
- Public works to go ahead at increased pace.
- No hints of any increases in taxes or any reductions.
- Province-wide superannuation plan for hospital workers.
- Expansions proposed in government services covering such things as probation, scholarships for senior matric and university students, public library services, teacher training, alcoholism and narcotics addiction control, housing for aged, and nursing home facilities.

Relax Money
Curbs---Labor

OTTAWA (CP) — Relaxation of "tight money" to aid Canada's economy and boost employment was urged on the government today by the Canadian Labor Congress.

The 1,100,000 CLC in its annual legislative submission also urged a freer trade policy and expansion of Canada's social security program.

The 13,000-word submission was presented to Prime Minister Diefenbaker and ministers by a delegation led by CLC President Claude Jodoin.

Dealing with the general economic situation, the congress said it is recognized as being better than a year ago but declared that there seems little prospect that 1960 unemployment will be appreciably less than last year.

TIME TO EASE OFF

Noting that the government had run a large deficit partly to lift the country out of recession, the congress said that it is not suggesting a succession of these but added:

"We do suggest the time has come to relax the present tight money policy."

"We are not afraid that an increase in the money supply will lead to inflation, as long as we have, as we unquestionably have now, considerable unused resources of plant, equipment and manpower."

Discussing international trade, the brief renewed a proposal for establishment of a Canadian export import bank to help Canadian exports compete with those of the United States.

URGE FREER TRADE

Every consideration of self-interest should impel Canada to pursue a policy of freer multilateral trade. And increased trade with underdeveloped countries could lessen the danger of a swing to communism.

ROSS IN FAREWELL CEREMONY

Sickness, Rain
Dull 'Opening'

Outside bleak weather dampened the ceremonials at the opening of the B.C. Legislature's session this afternoon.

Inside, the absence of Premier Bennett, in hospital, subdued the proceedings.

But all the customary procedures marking the historic rights of democracy were carried out, along with the pomp of artillery salutes, a sharp honor guard of the famed Princess Pats and the music of a naval band.

Lieut. Governor Frank Ross, opening his fifth and last session before retiring from office, arrived in his state uniform from government house at 2:45 p.m. and the roll of the artillery across the Causeway was the signal for the show to begin.

CHAMBER CROWDED

The chamber inside, as customary, was crammed with officials of all ranks, and visitors from many parts of the province, with their ladies, to witness the ceremonies. Only 49 of the 52 elected members were in their seats, however, as both Archie Gibbs, Oak Bay Liberal, and Tom Bate, Point Grey Social Credit, are on the sick list with Mr. Bennett.

17,000 Strike
In Shipyards

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 17,000 shipbuilders' union members were on strike today against all of the Bethlehem Steel Company's plants on the United States eastern seaboard.

Eight shipyards and a nuclear research centre are affected.

The strike spread last midnight to six of the shipyards. Three are in New York City, the others at Sparrows Point, Md., Baltimore and Boston.

Major Points
As Government
Outlines Plans

Times Legislative Reporter

Substantial boost in payments to welfare cases and pensioners and additional aid to school districts were two of the main points in the speech from the throne to the B.C. legislature today.

There were no major surprises or policy changes indicated in the government forecast — one of the longest on record — which was delivered by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross. A large part of the address reviewed what the government has done in the past year.

But its tone strengthened speculation that an election is near.

Many of the benefits proposed will not be fully detailed until the presentation of Premier Bennett's budget on or about Feb. 12.

This holds true for the two prime items — welfare and school grant increases.

"As further evidence of my government's concern for the welfare of the needy, of old age pensioners, of the blind, disabled and handicapped, and of those receiving social allowance, you will be asked to approve substantial increases in the present supplementary allowance and basic social allowance," the speech said.

It also said, "Your approval will be sought of increased grants to school districts, as well as to the University of British Columbia and to Victoria College."

Help for School Financing

The speech did not clarify whether this would indicate a change in the formula to increase the provincial share of school costs, or whether it indicated more would be spent on schools by the province — which might ordinarily be expected through the demands of increased enrolments.

The throne speech was more specific in promising aid to school districts where construction programs have been slowed because of difficulty in marketing bond issues.

The government has itself purchased $9,000,000 of the last $12,000,000 in bonds issued by B.C. school districts, and "negotiations are now proceeding toward the direct purchase by the government of further school board securities in the amount of about $8,000,000."

Further in the field of education, benefits, the throne speech said, an increase will be proposed in funds available for matriculation and university honor student scholarships, bursaries and loans to students requiring assistance with tuition.

Under legislation brought down last year, the province pays 50 per cent of the tuition of top students, and 33½ per cent for the first 1,000 with second class honors. A $2,000,000 student loan fund was set up.

Election Speculation Mounts

Additional "incentive and assistance" is proposed for superior teachers to enable them to take postgraduate courses "while special recognition will be accorded to other outstanding teachers for meritorious service."

The throne speech contained no hints of tax increases or of legislation to affect labor-management negotiations, or other contentious issues, lending strength to the earlier speculation this will be a pre-election session.

Civil servants were praised and told the government will extend further benefits to them. Voluntary training courses will be continued and a fourth executive development training course will be started. There was no direct reference to salary increases.

At the same time, the speech gave no indication the government will make public the Carrothers report which was filed a year ago after an investigation into the question of extending bargaining rights to the B.C. Government Employees' Association.

On the other hand, mention was made of the reports of three commissions of enquiry to be tabled this session — the Shrum report on power matters, Judge A. E. Lord's investigation of Doukhobor land problems, and the report of Judge J. C. Morrow's hearings of the Empire Mills tree farm application. All were made public earlier.

Nursing Survey, Chronic Care

The government will make a province-wide survey of nursing home needs and will implement a program to assist construction of publicly-operated, non-profit institutions.

Further assistance will be offered in the construction of elderly persons' housing developments.

As anticipated, the speech noted "that during the current year my government proposes to undertake an active chronic care program as an extension of the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service."

Outlined earlier, the plan would extend BCHIS coverage to persons requiring extended rehabilitation and convalescence but likely would not cover the elderly infirm who would not improve under extended treatment.

There will be a broadening of the government's Salk anti-polio vaccine program "to offer the opportunity for immunization to every person in the province."

There will be improved services for the handicapped. There will be legislation to "encourage, stimulate and promote recreation, sports and physical fitness programs," indicating a revival of the former "Pro-

BUT THE DOCTOR WILL TRY AGAIN

Woodpecker Spurs 'Mate'

LONDON (AP) — Dr. Ludwig Koch oiled up the old tape recorder today for his 17th annual attempt to capture the mating call of the lesser spotted woodpecker.

The good doctor is 78 now, but he refuses to give up hope.

Last year he almost made it. He crouched in a copse for 72 hours, recorder poised, while a lesser spotted woodpecker hammered tantalizingly on the trees.

Unfortunately, the bird never did get in the mood for love. Or if he did, he kept it to himself.

"Recording this call," said Koch, who is an international authority on bird talk, "is terribly difficult because the bird utters his note so very rarely."

The call, which Koch whistled for an interviewer, is a regular series of identically pitched cheeps. Goes like this: "Cheep-Pause. Cheep. Pause. Cheep. Pause," and so on, sounding a little like a stanza of beatnik poetry.

TRAFFIC FALLS

E and N Drops Car

A new, smaller rail car, capable of carrying 50 passengers, will replace the present 90-passenger E. & N. Railway rail car next week, according to D. C. Hartley, company superintendent.

He said falling passenger patronage was responsible for the move.

"At present the big rail car carries only about 25 passengers each way on its daily run from here to Courtenay and back," he said, "and many of those are for short trips."

"It is not right to tie up the larger car when it could be used to advantage on some other route," he said.

Although the new car is smaller, it will operate on the same schedule as the larger, and will provide the same standard of travel comfort. It also is diesel powered, like the larger car.

The original diesel car, built by the Budd company, started service on E and N lines in July, 1955.

"It is possible that we will bring it back for the summer, when there is more passenger traffic," Mr. Hartley said.

"The Vancouver Island roads are good now, and people can drive their own cars to Nanaimo in 1½ hours," he said.

"Most prefer to travel that way, and have their cars with them at the end of their trips."

Although the passenger picture is bleak, Mr. Hartley said, the freight business is good. There is a steady flow from the Port Alberni paper mill, he said, and movement of logs from the Nitinat area to the east coast has provided new revenue.

Answer Phone Plea to RCMP

(From Duncan Bureau)

Duncan RCMP detachment will be asked by Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce to take steps to ensure that their phones are "adequately manned" at all times.

The action is the outgrowth of a complaint made last month by member H. J. Vickers that it had taken him more than half an hour to contact police by phone to report a break-in at his store.

The chamber at that time wrote the city of Duncan to ascertain if the detachment was up to full strength, and was informed this week that because the Duncan office is headquarters for both the city and the municipality, seven or eight constables are available in case of emergency.

Members said that if this is the case, then it is not asking too much to have a policeman answering the phone at all times.

DEATH TOLL 16 IN HEAT WAVE

SYDNEY Australia (AP) — Sydney sweltered today in a fourth straight day of temperatures above 100 degrees. The death toll rose to 16.

The prolonged heat wave saw the mercury rise to 103.4 degrees and set a record. Never before in the 101 years of recorded weather history has Sydney experienced more than two successive days of above-100 heat.

Residents To Protest Flooding

NAKUSP, B.C. (CP) — Residents of communities along the Arrow Lakes in south-central British Columbia say they will resist any attempts to flood their area in a power development.

R. F. Cooke, secretary of the Nakusp Chamber of Commerce, sent telegrams to B.C. newspapers Wednesday, asking their help "to prevent the sale of our 150-mile valley to power interests."

In Ottawa-CCF member of parliament H. W. Herridge of West Kootenay, whose home north of here would be flooded, is reported to have described the plan as an outrage.

Fifteen small communities along the Arrow Lakes would have to be relocated, with their 1,600 residents, if plans for a high dam on Lower Arrow Lake is put through.

'Bill 43 Unfair' Pulp Mill Men Reply to Bennett

CROFTON—Pulp mill workers here have taken Premier Bennett to task for saying that the rank and file of union members favor the controversial Bill 43.

This resolution was passed at a meeting here this week: "Whereas earlier this month the premier untruthfully stated that the rank and file of union members favored Bill 43, Local 883—International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite, and Paper Mill Workers, Crofton, hereby resolve to condemn the present government for such unfair legislation and will welcome the opportunity to show its displeasure at the next election."

Pilot Blamed In Death Dive

OTTAWA (CP) — A transport department report Wednesday on a Vancouver Island aircraft accident put the onus of blame on the pilot.

H. Lutz of Vancouver was killed July 22 when his Cessna 170B seaplane stalled while circling over water near Qualicum Beach Inn and crashed.

"The pilot failed to maintain sufficient speed and allowed the aircraft to stall at too low an altitude to effect recovery," the department report concluded.

FROM NEPTUNE'S KITCHEN

TUNA AND CHEESE WITH FRENCH FLAIR

Season white sauce with thyme, minced onion, salt and pepper. Cook. Stir in cheese and butter. Don't cook. Pour sauce over Clover Leaf Tuna. Sprinkle with grated cheese. Broil. Clover Leaf packs only the delicate white meat of albacore, the choicest tuna of all.

City Drug Addiction Problem Increases

Victoria can't compete with Vancouver as a narcotics centre but it's growing.

Police Chief John Blackstock today told city police commission that there is a drug addiction problem here.

Asked by Mayor Percy Scurrell if it was increasing, the chief said:

"Yes, it is growing a bit. We are working very closely with the RCMP on it. It will all come out in the department's annual report next month."
